Secretary Simon Says 5 Per Cent Surtax Still Alive

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration is considering a renewal of its call for a 5 per cent income tax surcharge, Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said today.

"It (the surtax) is most clearly going to be an option we will give the President next week," Simon said in testimony to the Senate Budget Committee.

While emphasizing that President Ford had made no decisions about the economic package he will present to the Congress early next year, Simon appeared to dispute hints from the White House and others in the administration that the surtax was now a dead issue.

Simon also emphasized that the administration had not abandoned its policies of fiscal discipline — sometimes called "the old-time religion" — despite a deepening recession.

Under the surtax proposal, the portion of individual earnings above $7,500 — $15,000 for a family — would be subject to the 5 per cent surtax. It was designed, according to the administration, to place a portion of the burden of fighting inflation on those who could afford it.

Simon said the administration must recognize that the economy "is in need of a degree of fiscal and monetary support," but he emphasized that he still feels that inflation is the major culprit in the economy and that increasing spending to fight inflation would be unwise.

"We are fighting both (inflation and recession)," Simon said. "But inflation is the major factor in causing recession."

Simon said that the recession probably would continue its downward trend into the spring of 1975, but "we expect real growth to resume some time during the middle months of the year."

He said he expected production in both the housing and automobile industries to pick up late this winter or in the early spring.

Simon, under tough questioning by budget committee Chairman Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, repeatedly avoided questions on whether he personally favored specific economic proposals such as the surtax or a tax cut.

Muskie, obviously annoyed, said he was confused and "it's hard to know what the administration's position is."

Simon's statement about the surtax was the only reference to a specific program during the intense questioning by Muskie.

Congress all but ignored the surtax question during its last session, and it was considered almost certain that the administration had totally abandoned the idea until Simon's testimony today.

Meanwhile, the President was informed by congressional leaders today that House and Senate negotiators were on the verge of a compromise on the controversial issue of military aid to Turkey, which has already been cut off by the United States.

Details of the plan were not announced, but lawmakers emerging from a White House meeting with the President indicated it might be adopted later in the day.

There were indications the compromise might stop the aid cutoff temporarily to give the administration more time to work on a compromise between Turkey and Greece over the battle-scarred island of Cyprus.

Aid for Turkey was cut off Dec. 10 by earlier legislation, but the Senate has passed a bill would resume aid until Feb. 13. A House-passed bill, however, prolongs the cutoff until Turkey agrees on a plan to withdraw its armed forces from Cyprus or until June 30.

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott indicated the negotiators have come up with a formula that would allow aid to resume at "the discretion of the President" until Feb. 5.

The President called congressional leaders to the White House to brief them on his weekend summit meeting with French President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing in the West Indies. He was also told that his nominee for vice president, Nelson A. Rockefeller, would be confirmed and sworn in by Thursday night.

Ford has strongly opposed the aid cutoff to Turkey on grounds that angering the longtime ally could jeopardize the United States' strategic position in the eastern Mediterranean.

Sen. Frank Moss, D-Utah, told reporters the conference committee on Turkey aid was "close to agreement," but he declined to give details.

"Compromise is very much in the air," Rep. John Anderson, R-Ill., told reporters.

"The President is working very hard on this matter," said Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C. "It's felt the matter will be worked out. It's very delicate."

House Democratic Leader Thomas "Tip" O'Neill of Massachusetts told Ford that Congress "was definitely targeted for getting through work," probably this week.

The President returned to Washington Monday following three days of talks with Giscard on the island of Martinique which produced agreements on energy and gold.

Mayor Outlines Progress at Chamber Breakfast

Koenig... 'We're Satisfied'

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON

Mayor Francis R. Koenig came prepared to talk about the accomplishments of his administration during the past year but it was the future of the old city hall and Broadway East that seemed to interest the members of the Ulster County Chamber of Commerce today at the Gov. Clinton Hotel.

The mayor, noting a certain sense of defeat in the nation, suggested to the 50 assembled business persons that "we use these last days (of 1974) to look back not at our problems but at our accomplishments."

If accomplishments, as outlined by the city's chief executive, now finishing his fifth year in office, were any indication, 1974 was a very good year for Kingston, although Koenig played it down somewhat by stating "We're satisfied."

Koenig, in a 17-minute address at this morning's breakfast meeting, outlined 20 areas of progress by his administration since last January. He began by referring to his own Mayor's Message of Jan. 1 in which he had noted the increasing impact of "decisions out of Washington" and that in order to meet these "new challenges" the streamlining of "archaic municipal government" would be required.

The first example Koenig offered of that was the implementation of the Greater Kingston Solid Waste Study Commission (involving the city, the village of Rosendale and the towns of Hurley, Ulster, Kingston and Rosendale). Koenig said details of a solid waste disposal plan for the region would be announced shortly.

Koenig's list also included improved dog control, opening of 122 units of UDC housing in Broadway East, the Pike Plan in the Uptown Project, improved safety inspection programs by the fire department, "extensive research" into a new firehouse uptown to replace the Fair Street Station, the work of the Bicentennial Commission, 800 new parking meters, charter revision, Phase II of the Rondout Community Center, a national flood insurance program, jobs for the unemployed, $90,000 for three new mini-buses.

The mayor finished up his prepared remarks with a review of his administration's efforts to supply housing for senior citizens and a shopping plaza in Broadway East. Both those efforts came together with the opening of bids Dec. 3 for 100 units of senior citizen housing and the shopping plaza. "We've been waiting a long time for this," Koenig said.

The first question was about city hall plaza. Koenig said he had been told the developer (whom he later identified as Granada Builders Inc. of Port Ewen) had been talking with a food store tenant on the terms of a lease. "He wants to break ground next spring," Koenig said, on a food store which studies show will be the fourth largest in the area.

On the old city hall, Koenig reiterated his often-stated position that "nobody has come forward with any concrete proposals for the use of the building."

Asked his ideas on the fate of the 101-year-old structure Koenig replied, "Right now I don't see any future for the building. I don't know."

Koenig did allow that Kingston Hospital's moving out "might change things considerably."

Trustees Vote to Relocate Kingston Hospital

KINGSTON

After a year of exhaustive study and deliberation, Kingston Hospital Board of Trustees decided Monday that any continued financial investment at its present Broadway site would be "imprudent" therefore it will relocate in a new $23 million facility outside the city.

The actual site for the new hospital was not disclosed but it has been reported that the board is considering the Sawkill Road area near the Thruway Circle.

The present building adjacent to the old city hall on Broadway will be used as a "skilled nursing home," according to the trustees. Such a facility would be required by state law to provide a certain amount of nursing care per patient per day (two-and one-half hours).

Consideration of expansion plans for the hospital began just a year after the announced merger of some departments of Kingston and Benedictine Hospital fell through.

At the time Kingston Hospital Administrator

Anthony R. Triulzi announced the hospital would have to change its whole outlook and subsequently the board hired the consulting firm of Cresap, McCormick and Paget of New York City.

According to Triulzi and Board President Wilbur Peters, the consultants offered three options but argued strongly for relocation in light of what they felt would be the benefits, efficiency and ultimate progress a new hospital in a new location could offer.

The consultant's options included expanding the present two-acre site at an estimated cost of $13 million. The argument against it being that expansion would be limited and any significant future growth virtually impossible. Much money would also be needed for parking.

A second alternative was to expand to the adjacent two-acre city hall property at an estimated cost of $17 million. This option included many of the same problems as the first.

The board's recommendation to relocate must now be presented to the New York State Department of Health for its review and final approval of the project.

Members of the medical staff as well as the trustees reviewed the final report of the consultants in detail. Triulzi said that the hospital is also interested in community input and would welcome any group or individual to make suggestions by letter to him.

In a statement issued today the hospital said there were many other recommendations offered in the consultant's report and the trustees will review them since they deal basically with programs to be housed within the new complex.

"The board and the medical staff agree that Kingston Hospital should broaden its role in providing health care and should work toward the development of an even greater comprehensive role in community health services," Triulzi and Peters said.

"It was reaffirmed also that in developing services offered in a facility at a new site, Kingston Hospital will continue its policy of cooperating with other community hospitals, health care providers and area physicians," they concluded.

93rd Congress In Homestretch

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Adjournment fever is soaring as the 93rd Congress appears headed for a controversy-free finish by the end of the week. Maybe.

Although no serious obstacles are in sight, Congress has in the past become snarled in unexpected stalemates that kept the Senate and House in session as late as New Year's Eve.

A major roadblock fell Monday when the House, in a surprise move, dropped demands for a strong antibusing legislation, 224-136.

The move sends an $8.6 billion supplemental appropriations bill to the White House — without the anti-busing measure.

The major bills Congress still wants to pass are a measure to improve terms for trading with the Soviet Union if the Russians permit free emigration of Jews; a package to create jobs and add benefits for those without jobs; and foreign aid authorizations.

In addition, the House plans to confirm Nelson Rockefeller as vice president.

The Senate Monday cleared a number of major bills, including one Ford has said he would veto, setting standards for strip mining of coal.

The Senate also approved a $3 billion military construction authorization 89-0 and sent it to a conference with the House; a 13-week extension of unemployment benefits 84-0, also to conference; and approved, 44-40 and sent to the White House a bill to require that up to 30 per cent of imported oil must come in American tankers.

The Senate also approved the 1925 Geneva Protocol banning chemical and biological warfare; ratified the Geneva Convention outlawing biological and toxin weapons; the U.S. Bulgarian Consular Convention, and an amendment to the text of the 1925 convention of international maritime traffic.

Some snags developed. The Senate refused to accept a conference report on the Export-Import Bank.

It goes back to conference with the House demanding that U.S. loans to develop natural gas fields in the Soviet Union be denied unless Congress consents.

And Senate-House negotiators failed to reach agreement on a $2.6 billion foreign aid bill when negotiators could not agree on a date for cutting off aid to Turkey if the Cyprus issue is not settled.

Landlord Lured to Death

POUGHKEEPSIE

On the pretext of wanting to rent a room, three men lured a landlord to a Poughkeepsie rooming house Monday night and shot and killed him while making off with his wallet which contained the day's rent collection.

Poughkeepsie police said they are seeking three black males believed to be in their late teens or early 20's.

Killed in the robbery was Arundel T. Hunter, 48, of 63 Lakeview Road, town of Poughkeepsie.

Police were alerted to the shooting at 53 Lent Street at about 8:15 p.m. Officers arrived at the scene to find Hunter lying in front of the rooming house suffering from a fatal gunshot wound of the abdomen.

Rushed to Vassar Hospital, Hunter was pronounced dead at 9:20 p. m.

Police said someone had called Hunter's home earlier and asked to see a room at 53 Lent Street. When Hunter arrived at the rooming house he was jumped by the three robbers. Hunter's wallet, which police said contained about $1,700 in rent collected during the day, was taken. Hunter was shot with a small caliber handgun, authorities said.

Aided by the inclement weather which kept potential witnesses off the streets, the trio fled the immediate scene of the shooting on foot. "Everything was in the perpetrators' favor," one officer said.

The only added description of the killers police were able to provide was that they wore dark clothing and were between 5 feet 8 and 5 feet 10 inches tall.

Israel Charges Syria Violates Pact With Extra Weapons

By UPI

Israel today charged Syria stationed 90 tanks along the cease-fire line on the Golan Heights in violation of the separation of forces agreement signed last year.

Under the troop disengagement pact approved last May, each side agreed to limit its forces to 36 tanks.

The Israeli National Radio also accused Syria of stationing two more artillery batteries than the 18 permitted under the agreement.

The report said United Nations troops on the Golan Heights already asked Syria to remove the extra weapons.

In Tel Aviv, government sources said Israel was still hopeful for diplomatic progress toward a second-stage troops disengagement pact with Egypt despite fears of rising Arab militancy.

The sources said a crucial factor will be Cairo's position after the mid-January Middle East trip of Soviet Communist party General Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev.

"If Brezhnev's visit brings less Egyptian readiness to negotiate, it will bring less readiness on our part," the sources said.

The sources confirmed Israel proposed a military drawback agreement in the Sinai desert that would remain in force for five to 12 years.

The newspaper Ha'aretz said the plan called for a pullback of Israeli troops from 19 to 31 miles in the Sinai Desert.

In Beirut, the newspaper Al Moharrer said Egypt has already turned down the proposal. The newspaper said the plan was designed to "sabotage" the visit of Brezhnev to the Middle East next month.

Earlier, Jordan's King Hussein accused Israel of building up its forces for a new round of fighting.

He said in an interview with Britain's newspaper the Guardian that "in certain circumstances" Israel may use atomic weapons. He added, however, that he did not know for sure whether Israel actually had such nuclear weapons.

In Cairo, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat said Monday "the momentum for peace should continue" if both sides want to avoid the explosion of a new conflict in the Middle East.

"One of the most pressing and important questions at present is to try to defuse the bomb which is about to explode here in the Middle East because of the Arab-Israeli conflict," Sadat said.

In an interview with the Cairo newspaper Al Akhbar, he threatened to accept the Soviet call for a full-scale Middle East peace conference if America's step-by-step approach fails to bring a settlement.

"If the Americans can, through their step-by-step approach, achieve any progress or success, I welcome this and I can agree to it," he said. "If they cannot, then we shall go to Geneva in accordance with the Soviet theory."

Sadat said recent reports about Israel's nuclear potential were attempts "to scare and terrorize us."

"If Israel introduces atomic weapons into this area, we also shall find the means to acquire atomic weapons," he said. "But we shall not be the first ones to use atomic weapons."

In Tel Aviv, Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin said

Monday "it is our firm conviction that the momentum of the peacemaking process must be maintained, however impaired it was by recent developments."

He said Cairo's recent "absurd call" for limits on Jewish immigration to Israel "can, of course, disturb the prospects for peace, if that is what Egypt wants."

"Nothing, however, can possibly dissuade Israel from its historic human mission of national ingathering," the prime minister said. "For this, Israel was reborn. It is the lifeblood of our homecoming nation."

Turns Down Bid on RFK's Death

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The district attorney Monday rejected a demand to reinvestigate the killing of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, but Sirhan's attorney said he would appeal for a new trial.

District Attorney Joseph P. Busch said supposed new evidence has been hashed over repeatedly and there is no doubt Sirhan B. Sirhan was the assassin.

Ex-Rep. Allard Lowenstein of New York had told a news conference there Sunday that ballistics evidence in the slaying shows at least two pistols were fired in the assassination.

Busch said the "second gun" theory and the evidence behind it had been the subject of at least three previous investigations.

He said he would not conduct new ballistics tests, but would go along if Sirhan's attorney got a court order reopening the case.

Attorney Godfrey Isaac said he would appeal to the state supreme court in the next few weeks, asking for a new trial for Sirhan, now serving a life sentence.

"I would not object to a court-ordered firing of the weapon," Busch said, "inviting" Sirhan to request a hearing.

"He's the man who has the legal standing to do it. I haven't heard Mr. Sirhan complain about his conviction."

"I am firmly convinced that Sirhan Sirhan — acting alone — killed Robert F. Kennedy," he said.

"A number of eyewitnesses — all at close range — saw Sirhan Sirhan shoot Robert F. Kennedy, and did not see anyone else fire a gun, in the pantry of the Ambassador Hotel on the night of June 5, 1968.

"The most exhaustive police investigation in Los Angeles history determined that no conspiracy existed," he said.

Lowenstein maintained that evidence showed at least nine shots had been fired, while Sirhan's revolver held only eight, that the bullet which hit a television newsman came from a gun other than the one that killed Kennedy, and that the fatal bullet was fired "about an inch from his (Kennedy's) right ear," while Sirhan was at least two feet away.

Construction Pickets Slow Mines

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Striking mine construction workers, numbering 4,500, have stepped up picketing in five states, idling nearly 50,000 coal miners who refused to cross the picket lines.

The government's chief labor trouble-shooter called a bargaining session for today in hopes of settling the strike and getting the nation's soft coal production back to normal for the first time in more than a month.

The miners, who staged their own strike Nov. 12, began returning to work Dec. 9, but the construction workers, who were not included in the miners' contract, have been picketing mines ever since.

The UMW is the parent union for both the miners and the construction workers, but the two groups negotiate separate contracts.

Increased picketing Monday doubled the number of miners not working. About 20,000 miners were idled in West Virginia, 10,000 in Illinois, 6,500 in Pennsylvania, 5,500 in Virginia, 800 in Ohio, and nearly all the 7,000 miners and mine construction workers in Alabama.

Several court orders were issued and others requested asking authorities to stop the picketing.

Chief government labor mediator W.J. Usery Jr., called negotiators for the UMW and the Association of Bituminous Contractors back to the bargaining table at 10 a.m. in Washington.

The talks broke off Friday after the ABC refused to make changes the union's 39-member Bargaining Council demanded in a tentative contract agreement reached by the negotiators earlier last week.

Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp., one of four mine operators which went to court in Pittsburgh Monday to force miners to cross the construction workers' picket lines, said the continued loss of coal production was forcing it to make production cutbacks that would result in the layoff of 1,000 employees.

Greek Banker Will Be Tapped

ATHENS (UPI) — Premier Constantine Caramanlis is expected to nominate banker Xenophon Zolotas today as Greece's provisional president.

Zolotas, governor of the Bank of Greece, is only expected to hold the largely ceremonial post until parliament overhauls the constitution to build up the power of the presidency.

Political sources said Caramanlis, who won an overwhelming victory in last month's national elections, is likely to run for president under the new constitution. Zolotas would replace Gen.

Phaedon Gizikis, the last remaining member of the country's former military regime. The 57-year-old army officer resigned Sunday.

Parliamentary sources said Caramanlis would ask the legislature to elect Zolotas quickly. Approval was considered certain.

A bill now before parliament calls for the interim president to perform most of the formal duties assigned to a king under the old constitution.

The temporary leader, however, would not have the right to suspend or dissolve parliament and call for elections.

Caramanlis, whose New Democracy party holds 220 of the 300 seats in parliament, planned to run for the presidency after the legislature expands the job, parliament sources said.

A government spokesman said parliament would draft a new constitution, based on the republican system of government, within three weeks. It will outline in detail the duties of the regular president.

Greeks elected a new legislature Nov. 17 and voted in a referendum 21 days later to abolish the monarchy and establish a republic.

Unique Service For United Way

KINGSTON Donald A. MacIsaac, recently promoted and transferred by his employer, has been honored with a plaque by the United Way Board of Directors for his "numerous and unique" services to the local agency.

MacIsaac, previously manager of communications and community relations at IBM's Kingston and Poughkeepsie plants, was recently named manager of film activity at IBM corporate headquarters in Armonk.

During his 19 years as a Kingston resident, MacIsaac was identified with many civic endeavors. William Sloane, United Way president, noted that MacIsaac, a member of the Board of Directors and the Executive Committee for a number of years, had served as publicity chairman for the 1960 Community Chest campaign. In that capacity, he conceived and produced the film, "Much Like Us," which won a national award as one of the top five public service films in the United States. In 1966 he created and organized the Ulster County Radio Videathon, which drew national attention because of its involvement of practically every organization in the county in the United Way fund campaign. It was the first and only event utilizing the combined resources of television and the three Kingston radio stations, Sloane noted.

Tax Rate Lower in Lloyd

Sometimes you win, sometimes you lose.

Town of Lloyd residents got the tax word Thursday night from Supervisor Jon Decker. Armed with recently released county figures, Decker revealed that the combined county and town tax for Lloyd residents outside the hamlet of Highland would be down 20 cents from the present $95. For residents of the Highland special districts, is another matter — the rate goes up $5.36 (4.1 per cent).

A contingent representing local churches attended the meeting to ask the board to take action against X-rated movies shown in the town. Decker explained that he had previously consulted with Ulster County District Attorney Francis J. Vogt about the matter. The district attorney's office is the prosecuting agency in cases of this kind, Decker said, and the town will follow Vogt's lead in order to keep from possibly hindering or endangering the prosecution.

The board's Power Plant Subcommittee, a group of citizens headed by John Schlosser, presented three letter forms to the board to use in contacting legislators, the Atomic and Space Development Agency, and utility firms to express opposition to the proposed nuclear power plant lying almost wholly within the Town of Lloyd. The committee said it felt its forms were a clearer statement of opposition than those previously used by the town board, which took the committee's recommendations under advisement.

The Environmental Assessment Council will hold a public hearing at 8 p.m. on Tuesday, Dec. 17, in the town hall to discuss the environmental impact of the proposed $2 million secondary wastewater treatment plant for the town. Town residents are urged to attend.

Regional MCCDC Meeting

NEW PALTZ The Multi-County Community Development Corp. (MCCDC) has announced a meeting of the Mid-Hudson Region's state and federal elected officials Saturday, Dec. 21, from 1 to 4 p.m. at the Lecture Center, Room 108, of the State University College at New Paltz.

The press release did not state which particular officials will attend the meeting.

The meeting has been called, according to the organization, to discuss the use of federally funded feeding programs and the need for coordinating communications throughout the region.

The MCCDC said it hoped the meeting "will represent the beginning of a cooperative relationship on behalf of our residents."

PAULA WRIGHT AND HER CAMERAS

(UPI)

Woman Photographs Dogs and Cats

NEW YORK (UPI) — One of Paula Wright's best customers, all decked out in jewelry and wearing a ribbon in her hair, got so fidgety in front of the camera the portrait-photographer had to offer a bite to eat to calm her down.

"I gave her a piece of liver, and she became quiet and had this satisfied expression," the short, matronly artist said. "I got a beautiful picture."

The subject was a dog. "I'd say about 75 per cent of my business is animals, mostly dogs and cats," she said.

It began about 15 years ago when a middle-aged couple asked her to take some shots of their Chihuahuas.

"I said no, I do portraits of people, not dogs," the Hungarian-born artist recalled. "Well, the woman practically begged me. She said she had been looking all over for someone to do it. They were good customers, so I finally agreed."

The couple raved about the results, told all their friends, and soon the phone calls began.

"People wanted to know if I'd do their Irish Setter or their Siamese cat. I said, why not?"

More and more animal lovers brought their pets to Mrs. Wright's studio, in her apartment on Manhattan's West Side, until now she has photographed hundreds of dogs and cats and painted and sketched scores more.

Several albums bulge with what she considers her prize works: a brooding German Shepherd, a blond woman cuddling her poodle, a tabby playfully pulling on a bell cord.

Today, she still does portraits of people, such as Jolie Gabor, mother of the Gabor sisters. But her real specialty — and her real love — is animals.

Photographing them, Mrs. Wright says, has taught her a lot about people.

"They like to spend more money on their animals than on their children," she said. "When I quote my prices, my customers never say it is too much if it is their pet. But they often tell me the cost for their children is too much."

Mrs. Wright's motto during her sessions with animals, she says, is: "Be patient."

"Sometimes I'll stay with it for two or three hours. I have to be very watchful and alert, and take advantage of that special split second."

Apathy Forcing Rise in Diseases

ATLANTA (UPI) — The onetime childhood scourges of polio, mumps, measles, rubella, diphtheria, lockjaw and whooping cough are becoming threats again because of public apathy toward immunization.

Officials of the National Center for Disease Control say some of the diseases already are on the rise in some communities.

"This is a cause for concern and if we don't do a good job in reversing some of these trends, we are going to have some problems," said Dr. John Witte, director of the CDC's immunology division.

Witte said the immunization levels among preschool-age children have been dropping at an alarming rate during the past few years, particularly polio.

The immunization level against polio fell from a high of 84.1 per cent in 1963 to a low of 60.4 per cent last year, Witte said.

Fortunately, he said, there have been fewer cases of polio this year than in any year in the CDC's history despite the low level of immunization. There have been only five polio cases reported this year, compared to seven in 1973.

The immunization level against measles currently is 61.2 per cent, with rubella 55.6 per cent, mumps 34.77 per cent, and diphtheria, pertussis and tetanus 72.6 per cent, all down from last year, according to Don Stenhouse, a public health advisor in the immunology division.

The reasons for the drop, said Stenhouse, are that many young parents don't remember the one-time terror of these diseases and many doctors, because there are so few cases, are concentrating on cure rather than prevention.

Vaccines are available that will give almost 100 per cent protection against all of these diseases, and the CDC has become the coordinating office for a massive national effort to bring immunization levels up to 85-90 per cent.

Stenhouse said the campaign will concentrate on public and private health care providers and parents.

He said older children get the vaccines in public schools where they are required by law in most states, and a large part of the population, particularly men, received the vaccines through military service.

Adult women, however, are a large under-immunized group, he said.

Governmental Interference

The fact that nearly 200,000 automobile workers at General Motors, Ford, Chrysler and American Motors lost their jobs, at least temporarily as the Christmas season begins is a grim reminder that Americans are thinking twice before they buy a new car.

There is no doubt that the one deterrent is the price of automobiles. Inflation, industry leaders remind us, is only partly responsible for the problem. Lee Iacocca, president of the Ford Motor Co. summarized another, and even greater, reason. The Ford Pinto, says Mr. Iacocca, costs $1,014 more today than it did four years ago. Only about half of the increase results from the higher price of raw materials and labor. The other half is because of the anti-pollution and safety devices that are required by federal law.

Mr. Iacocca's statistics are persuasive. He says that if the present state of affairs continues, today's $3,392 Pinto will cost $5,085 in three years. "What started as a $2,000, 2,000-pound economy car will be a $5,000, 3,000-pound car with much lower fuel economy," he adds.

As an alternative, the Ford president suggests that the company should be allowed to design its own compact car. He believes that Ford could do it for $820 less and still provide reasonable health and safety standards.

Weapons for Christmas

Remember how, reacting to the pervasive violence of the 1960s, many parents quit giving toy guns to their kids at Christmas? Remember how the toy people reduced their arsenals of make-believe weaponry and placed new emphasis on educational playthings?

Add all that to grist for the nostalgia mill. Toy weapons are back-in strength, as military folk say. Consider a few examples.

There's the Planet of the Apes Tommy-Burst Submachine Gun, which will deliver a "real machine gun sound." Also the Panthermatic militarystyle rifle; it fires a clip and comes with instructions for oiling, cleaning and loading.

His report is not unique in the automobile industry. Moving in the wake of safety and environmental crusades in the last 10 years, the federal government has intruded deeply into the business of designing automobiles.

Without a doubt, the federal effort has done some good. Automobiles are safer today than they were a decade ago. While the air may not be much cleaner, at least it is not as dirty as it would have been had not something been done to reduce pollution.

On the other hand, there is no doubt that some of the government's lurching into the technology of the auto industry has been less than helpful. It is hard to see, for example, any virtue in adding to the weight, cost and fuel consumption of automobiles by requiring a bumper that withstands crashes at five miles an hour. It took Congress only a year to reverse itself on the hazardous interlock system which stipulated that seatbelts be locked before cars could be started.

The problem is that in the name of public safety, the federal government lost sight of the fact that the automobile industry wants to produce a car that the average American can afford. We would all be better off with less interference from politicians on Capitol Hill.

On toy store shelves one finds, too, a Jeep-howitzer combination which fires polyethylene shells, the Bounty Hunter Rifle with a sawed-off barrel, the Rookie 8-shot Revolver and a Pirate's Blunderbuss said to be all wood and steel. Then there is the Fighting Furies, two large, realistic male dolls (one missing a leg and the other a hand) that confront each other with knives and cutlasses.

Some say such toys inspire violence. Others say they prevent real-life violence by providing a harmless release for aggression. One thing is certain, though: they sell. Merry Christmas!

WASHINGTON—Moir was a little Vietnamese orphan girl who died a month before Christmas. She died of the measles, because there was no vaccine.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Profits More Important Than People

The vaccine that could have saved her young life never got out of the warehouse, where it is still stored in faraway America. An estimated 25,000 pounds of life-saving material is waiting in U.S. storehouses to be shipped.

Air Force planes, which have plenty of available space on their Vietnam flights, aren't permitted to haul the supplies. The National Transportation Policy restricts the government from competing with commercial airlines, except in specific emergencies. Even then, the regulations require that the Air Force be reimbursed.

Many orphans have died in Vietnam since the U.S. government stopped shipping vital food, clothing and medical supplies free of charge.

The supplies have been donated by charitable Americans, but they haven't been able to raise enough additional money to pay the huge shipping charges.

Some airlines have helped. So has the Canadian Air Force. But the Pentagon has routinely denied almost every request for a Vietnam orphan airlift, citing the official policy.

This was imposed upon the Pentagon by a Congress which is more interested in boosting airline profits than in saving dying orphans. An Air Force official blamed the airline lobby.

No exceptions are made to the shipping ban. Explains a memo, meant for Pentagon eyes only, from Defense Secretary James Schlesinger's office: "We are then placed in an untenable position, particularly as far as some of our congressmen are concerned, of appearing to show favoritism when other requests are denied."

Air Force plans fly to Vietnam loaded with military equipment and economic aid for President Thieu. President Ford has requested a whopping $2.6 billion to bolster the Thieu regime next year. But there isn't room in the planes for a few pathetic supplies to help the most innocent victims of the Vietnam War.

There are about 700,000 orphans in the ravaged little nation. Between 100,000 and 200,000 are half-American, the illegitimate progeny of U.S. servicemen.

Yet Vietnam has only 113 orphanages, which house a total of no more than 20,000 children. The rest fend for themselves, or stay with relatives.

In the few orphan homes, the vital supplies are needed not to provide for the children's comfort but simply to keep them alive. The ratio between staff volunteers and children is an agonizing 100 to 1. Little more than the necessities of life are provided.

With inflation soaring out of control in Vietnam, these orphanages must rely on U.S. aid for the necessities.

Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., is now searching for ways to loosen the insensitive regulations, so food and medicine can be shipped to the orphans. The Air Force itself would like to see something done.

Meanwhile, many Vietnam war orphans may not live to see another Christmas.

FOOTNOTE: Until December 1, packages for orphans could be sent to Vietnam with the military mail. Now, even that has been discontinued.

The Agency for International Development gave one group, Friends of Children, $5,000 to defray shipping costs. But the money ran out before many children could be supplied.

HEADLINES AND FOOTNOTES: Aristotle Onassis, the shipping magnate, is mystified by reports that his wife spends $30,000 a month on clothes. He has seldom seen her in anything except slacks and shorts, he remarked to a friend. . . . Detroit auto tycoons, desperate over the recession in the auto industry, have sounded out potentates about investing petrodollars in their auto firms. . . . America's most explosive industry has taken the consumers' side in a dispute as old as Independence Day. The Product Safety Commission is holding hearings on whether to ban firecrackers. Surprisingly, the ban is supported by the American Pyrotechnics Association.

By William F. Buckley Jr.

The United Nations has done another harebrained thing, voting by a huge majority for one of those dreamy economic resolutions, the brainchild of the President of Mexico, calling on all the nations of the world to do everything in their power to make economic matters worse. The substance of the prolix document is that every nation has the total right to control all the economic wealth within that nation, to expropriate without compensation if necessary, and to combine with other nations in such fashion as to regulate to their satisfaction the international cost of that commodity.

In effect, it is a declaration of war against two economic concepts: the right to own property, and the right to set a price after bargaining in a free market. These two concepts are responsible for producing the greater part of the world's wealth which is why, with that unerring instinct for doing the wrong thing, the United Nations is now rejecting them. The vote? 120 in favor of the resolution, six against. The United States, Britain, West Germany, Denmark, Belgium and Luxembourg voted against. Ten countries, including Japan, France, and Canada, abstained.

We have got used to being voted down in the UN by huge majorities. Actually, there is a considerable difference in the frequency with which the United States and its resolutions are rejected. Last year, I undertook to do some research, the laborious fruits of which I now pass along, for those curious to know how in fact the nations of the world tend to behave in the UN when asked to vote on a matter in which the United States had a position most people would consider highly reasonable. It is a breakdown based on an examination of votes on 14 resolutions that divided the General Assembly. The resolutions were selected as a cross-example, and touched on such issues as: terrorism, colonialism, the Mideast, nuclear proliferation, and the recognition of revolutionary governments-in-exile.

As the grading suggested itself, it went from 11 (the perfect pro-U.S. score) to -12 (the perfect anti-U.S. score).

Well, one country got 11—that was Portugal. Needless to say, that was pre-revolutionary Portugal.

Next, with a score of 10, came South Africa. Then (7) the United Kingdom. Then (6) Israel, and (5) France. Then, with a score of 4, Belgium, Italy, and Luxembourg. Bolivia and Brazil had 3, West Germany and Nicaragua 2, Canada, Denmark and Ireland 1; and (Score 0) Spain, the Netherlands, Japan, Uruguay, Malawi, and the Maldives.

Increasingly anti-America (-2) was Iceland, followed (-3) by Greece, the Bahamas, Finland, and Sweden. In the next category (-4) you get Barbados, Haiti, Laos, Venezuela, Honduras, and Gambia.

Minus (was a very popular category, including Bhutan, Ecuador, Ghana, the Ivory Coast, Liberia, Malaysia, Mexico, Philippines, Singapore, Thailand, Jordan, Upper Volta, Botswana, Morocco, Burma, Iran, Turkey, Swaziland.

Minus 10 is the largest single grouping: Chad, Congo, Dahomey, Democratic Yemen, Egypt, Equatorial Guinea, Guinea, Indonesia, Iraq, Libyan Arab Republic, Mali, Algeria, Niger, Romania, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Uganda, Tanzania, United Republic of Yemen, Yugoslavia, Zambia, Jamaica, Saudi Arabia, Trinidad and Tobago, Albania, and Malta.

Minus 11, or just one step before the floor; China, Central African Republic, Oman, Senegal, Syria, Argentina, Bulgaria, Byelorussia, Cuba, Czechoslovakia, East Germany, Guyana, Hungary, Mongolia, Poland, Qatar, the Ukraine, the Soviet Union.

And bringing up the rear, with a score of -12: Madagascar, Pakistan, Afghanistan, Bahrain, Cameroon, the United Arab Emirates—and Zaire.

Zaire! Our old friend, the Belgium Congo.

How many anomalies there are here. How disordered our diplomacy. How bootless our attempt to struggle through the General Assembly.

Nicholas Von Hoffman

The Pains of Business as Usual

WASHINGTON—As the news gets worse, so do the proposals to remedy it. The ticker tape has been printing an infinite line of bad news about layoffs, stresses in the banking system, worsening sales and shrinking pension funds—but it's at just such times the people in the government ought to display a modicum of thoughtful sagacity. Instead, the cacophony of ill-thought-out demands for action bespeaks of jittery haste replacing reason in high councils.

The Democrats are still talking about wage and price controls, when it ought to be dawning on them that vast amounts of credit would have to be manufactured to keep prices rising as they have been. By every sign, inflation is in the process of dropping down to merely intolerable levels.

We would be wise to confine our rejoicing, however. In our rigidified, debt-laden economy in which prices are engineered to go only one way, and that is up, any big moves in the other direction carry with them the risks of massive bankruptcies. To forestall that disaster, the Federal Reserve Board appears to be dumping money into the system, which means another inflationary surge eight or nine months down the road, with its subsequent recessionary reaction.

In place of making recommendations that would give us a gentler resiliency, so that the economy wouldn't ride like a traumatized car without shock absorbers, the leading men here continue to play the oil obligato. The chaotic notes of this ditty make Schonberg sound like Mozart.

The Canadian Prime Minister, Pierre Trudeau, is unaccountably criticized for imposing a quota on oil exports to the United States as our people simultaneously call for a quota on oil imports. The contradiction is left unexplained. After two years of cursing the dark-haired, olive-skinned Arabs for oil blackmail and other unnatural economic acts, the blond-haired, blue-eyed Norwegians announce they will do the same with the crude pumped from their new North Sea oil fields. No similar denunciations of Viking oil blackmail are heard.

What is left unremarked on is how American policy contributes to this Scandinavian-Arab-Nigerian-Canadian-Indonesian-Venezuelan cartel. By insisting that all the oil-consuming nations allow us to negotiate for them in a counter-cartel—probably because the State Department is trying to salvage the middle-man operations of the major oil companies—we are driving the producing countries into a marketing bloc.

There is another way for us. We could get rid of price controls on domestically pumped oil while stepping up antitrust action against the multinational oil companies. It defies the logic of self-interest to control the prices of domestic oil and then turn around and pay twice as much to foreigners as we do to our people.

Then our people will doubtless find another extraneous villain. The leading candidate is gold. Secretary of the Treasury Simon, a man who never before took much interest in consumer affairs, is warning people not to buy it lest they get clipped. But whatever the ups and downs of gold—and there are many—Mr. Simon is confusing an effect with a cause. The people who are tempted to buy gold do so only because they are at wit's end as to how to protect their savings against a constantly depreciating dollar. If Simon wants to prevent the deflationary effect of their pulling their money out of the stock market and the savings-and-loan associations to put it in gold, he need only give them a stable dollar.

Money losing firms should be allowed to go to bankruptcy and the auctioneer's block. People must be protected with unemployment compensation, and verily possibly, even with a limited mortgage moratorium of some kind. Once that's out of the way, we can begin restructuring our economy so that in our consternation and fright we don't keep inflicting the pains of the business cycle on ourselves.

Congressman Fish Tells Why He Voted for Rocky Confirmation

WASHINGTON, D.C. Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr. (R.-25th Dist.) voted to confirm the appointment of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller as vice president of the United States "without hesitation" because he feels Rockefeller has the needed "talent, experience, dedication and keen sensitivity to the problems facing America and the world."

In a speech before the House Judiciary Committee, Fish concluded that the nation has "few others as uniquely and eminently qualified to be a mere heartbeat away from the Presidency."

Recalling that Rockefeller served New York State as governor for 15 years, Rep. Fish said his administration was one of unparalleled accomplishment and progress in such varied fields as: education, health, transportation, environmental protection, urban development and human rights.

Regarding Rockefeller's involvement with the book written about his former opponent Arthur Goldberg, as well as the gifts and loans to close advisors, Fish labeled them "errors in judgement" that the governor publicly acknowledges.

But they stand out as aberrations in an otherwise remarkably unblemished career. Rockefeller has made a full public disclosure of his fortune, which limits the potential for abuse and effectively protects the public interest. Furthermore, he has offered to place his financial holdings in a blind trust as an additional sign of good faith," Fish said.

"There are some who sincerely express a concern about a man possessing such vast wealth being placed in a position of high public trust. The conflicts of interest, they say, are inherent and unavoidable. True, the melding of great personal fortune and public power is unique in our country and it demanded the intense examination of this committee."

Fish said he would urge those expressing these concerns to again review the Rockefeller record of public service nationally and as governor of New York. "Surely, during these many years a personal character susceptible to corruption — to abuse of trust — would have been revealed. It was my impression that it is not claimed that the nominee has or would use his powerful positions to enrich himself or enhance the Rockefeller financial interests."

"The issue, therefore, I submit is whether Rockefeller has used his complex of personal wealth and public power to the detriment of the public interest. The record over three decades of public life spread before us has survived the closest scrutiny," Fish explained.

"In his appearances before this committee Rockefeller demonstrated a belief in the ideals of this country and an impressive grasp of the problems we currently face. His performance here can only serve to reinforce the feeling of many of us that he is a man of high ideals and a remarkable public servant."

"Over the years, Rockefeller has served five presidents, beginning with President Franklin D. Roosevelt as coordinator for Latin American Affairs and then Assistant Secretary of State. He was deeply involved with the creation of the complex Department of Health, Education and Welfare under President Eisenhower and served as its first Under Secretary."

Today, he serves President Gerald Ford as a member of the Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board. So, he brings with him both a knowledge of foreign affairs and of domestic issues.

Rep. McHugh May Obtain His Wish

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Ulster County's Congressman-elect in the 27th District, Matthew McHugh, who sought appointment to the House Agriculture Committee, may get his wish.

McHugh's nomination to that committee was made recently by the Policy and Steering Committee of the House Democratic caucus. Final action on all nominations must be taken by the entire caucus when the new Congress convenes in January.

McHugh expressed satisfaction in being assigned to a post where he could be of direct service to the district. "I sought this appointment because during my campaign I saw how inflation has affected the food budgets of our families and our elderly," he said. "Our farmers are also under great economic strain and I would like to help."

"The farmer's operating costs have been rising at an alarming rate and he is in a financial squeeze. At the same time the burden on consumers is severe. I believe a congressman from this district should try to bring some reason and fairness to our agricultural policy, representing both producer and consumer interests."

McHugh also cited the world food crisis as a major concern and one which the Agriculture Committee can help alleviate. "Severe shortages of food abroad go beyond economics and raise humanitarian issues of great importance," McHugh said. "Our own food reserves have been depleted and our policies should be reconsidered to meet the current situation."

McHugh suggested that the ultimate solution to the world food shortage involved providing technical assistance to the developing countries so that they could increase their production and meet their own demands. In the meantime, however, McHugh said our policy should be to maximize U.S. food production. This would not only help meet the emergency world condition, he stressed, but would also serve as an effective buffer against inflationary food prices at home.

McHugh said he would seek the help and co-operation of people in the district. "We are blessed with farmers, educators and consumers who are knowledgeable on problems of food, agriculture and rural areas," he said. "I believe that my appointment to the Agriculture Committee will provide us with an opportunity to work together on these problems."

HOLIDAY SAVINGS

We wish you Good Cheer, Good Health, and the Merriest Christmas!!THANK YOU,
MR. PRESIDENT.

In a letter to A & P, President Ford wrote:

"Your effort to hold the line on prices and help consumers with an early warning system is a real contribution to fighting inflation. Americans need the encouragement such a program offers. It will give them hope inflation can be conquered if we all work toward that goal. Stabilizing the American economy will take time. But, it can be done if each one does what he can. A & P is to be congratulated on its program."

Other food stores have followed A & P with programs of their own. And we invite all our competitors to do the same.

We're trying to win a fight against inflation and inflation is everybody's battle. Here are the first steps we're taking to fight it.

1. AN EARLY WARNING SYSTEM
ON PRICE INCREASES:
THE AWARE LIST.

Every week we will voluntarily post a list of price increases such as those received from manufacturers a full seven days before we actually change our price subject, of course, to product availability. You'll also find "Be Aware" shelf tags on many frequently purchased items, with the day of the price increase right on the tag. Of course, the Aware List won't include perishables like meat, eggs or fresh fruit and vegetables, where markets fluctuate daily items controlled by law; or advertised specials. So before you plan your next week's shopping list, check this week's Aware List.

2. A PRICE FREEZE
ON A&P PRIVATE LABELS.

A & P voluntarily has put a ceiling on over 1000 A & P Products. (Smaller stores may not regularly stock all items, but a list is available in all stores.) That means prices will go no higher at least until the end of the year, on many products that you use everyday...bread, cheese, pasta, coffee, non-fat dry milk, frozen potatoes, rice, tuna fish, fruit cocktail, frozen dinners and canned peas and corn. Advertised specials below the freeze prices will still be offered. We've put the freeze on our private labels, because they represent the best values in our stores. And we'll hold down the prices, even if our ingredient costs go up.

3. OUR 13 POINT CONSUMER PROTECTION POLICY.

It's our continuing commitment to making you an Aware shopper by reminding you of what every A & P store owes you and by informing you of ways to get the most for your money. Look for the signs going up inside A & P stores spelling out all the protection A & P gives you: 1. Guaranteed Satisfaction 2. Exceptional Value 3. Low Price With Absolutely No Compromise in Quality 4. Rain Check-Product Availability 5. Product Freshness Through Open Dating 6. Consumer Information 7. Courteous Service 8. Cleanliness 9. Woodstock Auxiliary Assists at Gift Shop

Mrs. Margaret Hardie, president of Woodstock Unit 1026, American Legion Auxiliary, represented her organization recently at the Christmas Gift Shop maintained for the benefit of veterans at VA Hospital in Albany.

The objective of the shop is to enable patients to select gifts for their families at no cost to them. All the gifts are attractively wrapped and mailed by the Auxiliary.

Assisting Mrs. Hardie with the work were Mrs. William Vogel, Mrs. John Nesbit, Mrs. Charles McWilliams and Mrs. Carl Sanford.

Gifts included games, puzzles, greeting cards, eye glasses, paper-back books; and money, all of which were sent to the VA Hospital by the Woodstock Auxiliary this month. Other contributions by the local Unit were made to the Leonard Wood Memorial, Catskill Region TB and RD Association and to Christmas Eve on the Green in Woodstock.

At a recent county meeting, Woodstock Unit was presented with three citations for its work in the Cancer Control program, the American Legion Mt. Resort in Tupper Lake, N.Y., and for "outstanding achievement" in the field of Past Presidents' Parley.

Recently accepted into membership in the Woodstock Unit were Mrs. William Murphy and Mrs. Marion Ostrander.

The Auxiliary has adjourned until February 4.

Sisterhood Members Have Fashion Show

Fashions, jewelry and sale were on the agenda for the December 11 meeting of Sisterhood Temple Emanuel. In charge of programming was Mrs. Maxine Goodheim, who also doubled as coordinator and commentator.

Fashions were shown through the courtesy of Mrs. Doris Kaplan's Silk 'n Tweeds, Kingston, with models Mrs. Clara Meisner, Mrs. Sandra Sossner, Mrs. Joyce Lowe and Mrs. Marlene Etter. Mrs. Goodheim modeled clothes highlighted with jewelry from Mrs. Sue Simon's and Mrs. Linda Svirsky's Rings 'n Things in Kingston.

Mrs. Doris Kaplan donated gifts for a fund raising project that night and more than 40 enjoyed a social hour afterwards.

HVPS Tickets for Gateway Action

Through the efforts of the Rev. David Bronson, Norman Rafalowsky, and many others, 19 tickets were made available to Gateway Action Organization for the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Concert on Monday, Dec. 9.

Gateway Action Organization is a voluntary organization of clients that work at Gateway Industries, Inc. Aims are self-help, concern for the need of the handicapped everywhere and mainly, to be a source of client opinion to Gateway Industries, Inc. administration.

The 19 tickets were distributed among the handicapped at Gateway and in the community. Transportation was made available by an anonymous donor. Attending were the blind, the physically and emotionally handicapped, and persons who economically would not be able to afford the price of a ticket.

Afterwards, the group enjoyed a coffee hour at the residence of Miss Betty Baker, first vice president of the organization.

Doing the Right Thing

By ELIZABETH L. POST
1974 The Emily Post Institute, Inc.
Distributed by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Syndicate, Inc.

Dear Mrs. Post: (May I differ with you on your advice to Tricia to repay dinner hostesses by taking them out to dinner? I think a $2.00 box of candy or cookies or a bottle of wine would be quite acceptable in return for even a few dinner invitations.

For Tricia to invite two persons to dinner at any moderate-priced restaurant these days would cost her approximately $25.00 to $30.00 and more for three persons if drinks were added, which the average person expects.

I believe a better solution would be for Tricia to refuse to accept dinner invitations and explain the circumstances of her small apartment to her intimate friends. She should instead accept invitations to friends' homes after dinner for conversation and friendship.

I am in the same position as Tricia and am handling the matter of dinner invitations the way I've explained. When I occasionally do have to accept a dinner invitation, I bring a suitable but small gift and, in turn, invite my hosts to spend an evening with me at my apartment for snacks and a drink, if they wish.

If Tricia could afford the expense of entertaining in a public dining room she could also afford a larger apartment where she could entertain in her home for less.

That's my opinion, but maybe I'm wrong.

Agnes No, Agnes, I don't think you're wrong. Having had occasion to go out to restaurants several times lately, I think you're dead right! Very few working girls could possibly afford to take friends to a "good" restaurant, but I don't feel that that should mean they cannot accept an occasional dinner invitation from friends with a little more money or better facilities. They should not, of course, accept time after time if they cannot reciprocate, but, under the circumstances, the small, "token" gift you mention and a return invitation for after-dinner coffee or drinks would take care of the obligation.

Knives and Guns for a Peaceful Man's Kids?

By Abigail Van Buren

(1974 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I read a letter in your column from a student who was unfairly punished for defending himself against another kid who started a fight.

You advised the boy who had been picked on to report the matter to the school authorities, since fighting on the school grounds was against the rules.

I disagree with you. Running to the authorities to tattle is a coward's way out. That would only make the bully more determined to get even.

I am a father of three boys who have run up against this situation, and the advice I gave them is as follows: "Never strike the first blow, but if the other guy does, then it's clearly a case of self defense, so you are perfectly justified in using anything handy (fists, feet, club, gun, knife, etc.) to wipe out the aggressor."

If this happens, and my child is about to be punished, he is to call me, and I'll be at school within ten minutes, and if it's a case of self defense, nobody will punish my child without getting past me!

My method may be crude, but it works.

If my kids follow my advice, I doubt that any hoodlum will tangle with them more than once. I am a peaceful man and I detest violence, but there are times when it is the best and most convincing way.

MEMPHIS FATHER

DEAR FATHER: You claim to be a peaceful man who "detests violence," yet you suggest using a knife or gun! While exchanging blows may be justified in a case of self defense, no peaceful man would consider knifing or shooting one who threatens him unarmed.

DEAR ABBY: This morning I when I got up, our house was icy cold! My husband asked me what the matter could be, and then I told him that I had my bridge club over the day before. All the women in the club are between 45 and 55. One of the women got up and pushed the thermostat down—saying she was "burning up."

A little later another woman got up and pushed the thermostat up, saying she was "freezing." That went on all afternoon, and I suppose from all that adjusting, it put the thermostat on the blink.

My husband just about hit the ceiling. He said that if a guest is uncomfortable, she should tell her hostess, but under no circumstances should anyone ever touch the thermostat in someone else's home!

My husband said if I didn't have the nerve to tell this to my friends I should write to Dear Abby, and ask her to put it in her column. So I am asking.

CELIA

DEAR CELIA: So I'm complying.

DEAR ABBY: A man signed "Bugged" objects to his wife writing him notes to remind him of important things.

I wish my husband would write ME notes instead of expecting me to read his mind. I sure could use an occasional note telling me when he wants something.

special for dinner instead of being told 30 minutes before I'm ready to serve.

I write my husband notes and keep the carbons so he can't say I didn't remind him of his mother's birthday, or that so and so is expecting a return call.

Note writing is a lot easier than reminding him verbally. Besides, if I remind him more than once he tells me to quit nagging him.

PRO-NOTES

DEAR PRO: Hooray for you. Lucky is the spouse who's "note-ified." I'm a note nut myself.

CONFIDENTIAL TO

"UPSET IN PIT-TSBURGH": The Chuck who wanted to interest his wife in swinging did NOT live in Pennsylvania. Far from it. About 1,000 miles.

hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I am the struggling wife of a struggling college student, and have been pinching pennies so-o long that I knew I would just go completely "fufu" if I didn't get to go shopping and spend some money pretty quick.

Sooo, I did it!!!

And did I ever get some goodies and spend a lot of money! Actually, what I did was gather up lists and money from both my husband's and my family, and do their Christmas shopping for them.

They were glad to have some of it done for them and I was even more pleased to have the opportunity to get the irresistible urge to spend some money out of my system.

It's a good thing Christmas came along, or no telling what I might have done otherwise!

My word of advice to other wives who also have itchy fingers is to act now before it's too late and Christmas has gone for another year.

I'm sure my husband will be eternally grateful because I shopped so long and so hard that I may never want to go in another store for years—well, months (maybe).

A Satisfied Shopper

What a good idea for all of us!

These days, with the high cost of living and tight budgets, we still want to celebrate Christmas. So why not find someone who would love to have help with their shopping, a mother with several small children or some shut-in.

Would be a nice, thoughtful gesture on your part and also help to get rid of the "shopping binge" urge.

 Heloise

Dear Heloise:

We used to throw away old, tarnished Christmas tree ornaments, but this year I bought a can of spray paint and sprayed them all gold. On some of them, I sprinkled different colors of glitter while the paint was still wet.

The ornaments were quite attractive and I didn't have to buy new ones.

What to Do Before a Blood Test

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Would you please tell me what the normal blood sugar is supposed to be in a woman 65 years old? When you have a blood sugar test, which is best: Not to eat or drink from midnight or to eat and wait for several hours? What would you eat if it is best to eat before the test?

DEAR READER — The important thing is to have enough glucose sugar inside the cell. That is where the glucose is broken down to release energy for normal cell function. The level in the cell may not have a constant relationship to any specific level of blood glucose. So, a blood glucose test is only an approximation of what is going on inside the cell. That is one reason why one person may do very well with a fairly low blood glucose level and another person will have trouble. Occasionally a diabetic may have a fairly high blood glucose level while the level in the cell is so low that he will be having symptoms of low blood glucose (sugar). For more information about low blood sugar, write to me at P. O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N. 10019, and ask for the booklet on low blood sugar. Send 50 cents to cover costs.

The general guideline is that during the fasting state the blood sugar is not usually below 50. It can be lower in some individuals even though they feel fine. After eating something sweet or drinking sugar water, the level normally doesn't rise over 170. Depending upon how low the level falls, how high it gets, and how long it stays high, a doctor will use the response to help make a diagnosis of diabetes or low blood glucose (hypoglycemia).

A fasting blood glucose test is commonly used to screen for either hypoglycemia or diabetes. About half of the mild diabetics will have a normal fasting value — usually stated to be at least below 125 (the value depends upon the type of laboratory test done). Many more patients with milder diabetes will have values that are too high too long after eating, or after drinking a sweet drink. For this reason many doctors take a screening blood test about two hours after the patient has eaten or drunk sweets. Some will use a starch meal since starch is readily converted to glucose in the intestine before it is absorbed.

You should rely on your doctor to tell you how he wants you to prepare for a test. If he wants a fasting sample he won't want you to eat. And, if he wants one after eating or drinking something, he will usually have a particular food or drink he wants you to take that is standardized with his laboratory procedures.

Unless you are a diabetic or have a known medical problem, it is a good idea to prepare for tests of blood glucose by eating normally three days before the test. Don't fast or try to lose weight those three days. Be sure you get enough bread, potatoes, starch or sweets. If you don't your test may not be accurate because of lack of carbohydrates in your diet. If you are a diabetic be sure and get your doctor's instructions before any testing.

Holiday Coffeecakes Start With Frozen Bread Dough

For many families, the aroma of home baking is the first real sign that the holiday season is near, as cookies, fruit cakes, and coffeecakes are prepared for the home, guests, and gift-giving.

Traditional recipes for holiday treats were often difficult and time consuming. Luckily for today's homemaker, convenience products make holiday baking easy. For instance, frozen bread dough can be used to create an attractively shaped fruit-filled coffecake—and additional dough molded into pretty ornaments for the tree. This recipe for Christmas Bread comes from the makers of Rhodes frozen bread dough.

Christmas Coffecake

One loaf Rhodes frozen white bread dough
One-third cup powdered sugar

Three tablespoons butter or margarine, softened

One-half cup chopped walnuts, almonds, or pecans

One-quarter cup chopped candied cherries or candied fruit

One-quarter cup seedless raisins

One-half teaspoon lemon extract

Powdered sugar frosting
In its original package or plastic wrap let the dough thaw and reach room temperature. In small mixing bowl, cream together powdered sugar and butter. Mix in nuts, cherries, raisins, and lemon extract. Set aside.

Roll dough into a 14x8-inch rectangle. Spread filling to within one inch of edges. Starting from longest side, roll dough in jelly roll fashion; pinch to seal seam. Place on greased baking sheet, seam side down.

Cut slashes 1 inch apart and 2/3 of the way through roll. Pull slices out alternately to the right and to the left. Turn each slice on its side to show the filling. Cover; let rise until double in size. Preheat oven to 350°. Bake at 350° for 30 to 40 minutes, or until golden brown. Cool on wire rack. Frost with powdered sugar frosting and garnish with red or green cherries. Makes 12 servings (one 1½-inch slice per serving).

Christmas Ornaments

Let the dough rise and punch it down, repeating two or three times. On an ungreased cookie sheet, roll the dough out to ¼-inch thickness. Cut shapes with cookie cutters or freehand; remove excess dough. Bake at 300° for an hour or more, until dough is golden brown and very hard. Let cool and decorate with acrylic paints or trims.

Or mold bits of dough into Santas, angels, ponies, or other shapes, making large flattened cylinders for bodies and smaller ones for arms and legs. (Dough will rise somewhat when baked.) Bake at 300° until dough is golden brown and very hard. Cool and decorate.

Prepare filling. Roll dough into rectangle and spread filling to within one inch of edges.

Roll up dough in jelly roll fashion; pinch to seal seams. Place on greased baking sheet.

Cut slashes 2/3 of way through roll. Pull slices to right and left, turning to show filling.

Named Director Of Senior Residence At Benedictine

Anne S. Crowley

Appointment of Anne S. Crowley of Rhinebeck as new director of the Benedictine Senior Residence was announced recently. A proud 74 years of age, Mrs. Crowley is a cheery friend and confidant of the elderly and a delightful example of what many senior citizens can and do manage to attain.

The new director encourages her fellow senior citizens to mingle more, join in group activities and workshops and also keep active through social activities such as music, games, movies, teas and other endeavors.

"I just love the job," Mrs. Crowley said, perhaps because she so enjoys encouraging people to motivate themselves—something she has had vast experience in doing as the former owner of Crow Hill School in Rhinebeck since 1938. A boarding school for children, Mrs. Crowley headed the educational center until her retirement from that post in June of this year. A San Francisco native, she attended Colorado College, lived in Paris and Geneva where she studied music and made her singing debut in Town Hall in New York.

The widow of well-known Dutchess County lawyer E. Chase Crowley, she is the mother of two sons, a lawyer and an architect.

'Snow, Turning to Rain, Turning to Headaches'

By JON POWERS
KINGSTON

What a mess. To the delight of skiers and snowmobilers—but to the dismay of most everyone else—Ulster County was buried under a miserable mixture of snow and slush Monday that soaked shoes, snarled traffic and prompted early wishes for Springtime relief.

What made matters even worse were forecasts that promised just a light and brief dusting of snow, followed by a dreary down-pour of rain the rest of the day. The snow started falling in most areas between 7-8 a. m. and simply refused to stop until mid-afternoon.

Between three and four inches of snow accumulated in Kingston; up to six inches were recorded in other areas of the county and seven inches of new snow covered the slopes at the Belleayre Ski Center in Highmount.

And the storm caused one headache after another. Streets and highways throughout the county were barely passable at best . . . treacherous at worse. Kingston police reported 10 separate accidents in the city Monday, all of the fender-bender variety. Saugerties Town Police said that a car traveling north on Route 9W Monday morning skidded off the road into a ditch. Sixty-two-year-old Josephine Cooper of Hudson, a passenger in the car, was reported in satisfactory condition today at Kingston Hospital.

Heavy snow and falling limbs also kept Central Hudson work crews busy throughout the day. Power outages occurred in Glenrie, Woodstock, High Falls, Ellenville, West Hurley and Boiceville. Customers in Stone Ridge and Mt. Tremper were the hardest hit; they were without power for some three hours Monday night. Most schools in the county closed early Monday; most meetings and events scheduled for Monday night were cancelled.

Rain replaced the snow during much of the evening, and local residents rose this morning to plod through several inches of cold slush. Freezing early morning temperatures left some roads in the area glazed with ice.

All in all, it wasn't the best advertisement for a white Christmas.

Transportation Bond Funds Can Save Ulster RR Lines, but . . .

By CARL GRAHAM
KINGSTON

Two branch railroads in Ulster County, slated to be abandoned under the U.S. Rail Reorganization Act, can be saved by state authorities using Transportation Bond Act funds—but for how long?

This was one of the key issues discussed Monday night at an informational meeting in the Ulster County Office Building chaired by Gladys Kessler of the Office of Public Counsel (OPC), U.S. Rail Services Planning Office.

Ms. Kessler, also a lawyer and private consultant, outlined OPC's functions for an audience that included Ulster County Legislator Louis H. Bevier (R-Dist. 8), Ulster County Planning Director

Herbert Hekler, John Lawrence of the New York State Department of Transportation office in Poughkeepsie, Michael Breen of Pattern for Progress, the seven-county regional planning agency and Eugene Dauner, president, Robert Haines, vice president, and Harris Gordon, executive director of the Catskill Mountain Transportation Corporation (CMTC).

The overriding local issue concerns the fate of the Catskill Mountain Branch line, running northwest from Kingston into Delaware County, and the Wallkill Valley Railroad, running south from Kingston into Orange County. Both lines have been labeled unprofitable by Penn Central and "appropriate for abandonment" under the U.S. Rail Reorganization Act. Gordon said that CMTC, which is committed to buying the Catskill Mountain line if it is abandoned by Penn Central, has commitments from a majority of shippers along the line to pay a $2 a ton surcharge to help subsidize operations as an alternative to the estimated $5.6 a ton additional it would cost to ship by truck if the line is abandoned.

Ms. Kessler said OPC's goals under the reorganization of northeastern railroads are to select transportation that uses the least energy, to preserve competition among rail lines, to establish services best suited to the needs of the region, and to see that the reorganization has a minimal effect on unemployment. She noted that the reorganization is being carried out by the U.S. Railway Association (SURA) in two steps, a preliminary report being issued Feb. 26, and a final report to be submitted next summer to Congress for approval. She suggested that a committee incorporating shippers, railroad labor representatives, municipal planners, legislators, Chambers of Commerce, and other interested groups be set up to prepare data opposing abandonment of the lines, with OPC submitting it to USRA prior to its preliminary report.

Lawrence said DOT is prepared to save both Ulster County lines if Penn Central abandons them, but that Transportation Bond Act funds are sufficient for only about two years of subsidy and an alternative would have to be found during that time if the lines are to be saved permanently.

Lawrence also said he had heard rumors that the West Shore Line from Kingston south to Haverstraw was to be added to the list of lines slated to be abandoned.

Ms. Kessler was critical of USRA, saying it was interested only in the profit and loss statements of the lines "and is not taking into account any important environmental, energy, social, or other important factors."

Ms. Kessler was slated to conduct another meeting at 10:30 a. m. today in the Dutchess County Office Building in Poughkeepsie to discuss the proposed abandonment of the Harlem Valley line.

Controversy Erupts Over Paltz Pool Site

By LYNN MULVANEY
NEW PALTZ

Just where to locate the county's new pool and fair-ground parking area on the county farm property in New Paltz has several interested groups and the county on different sides of the fence (or perhaps the road.)

The county reportedly wants the pool, which was originally designed for the west side of Libertyville Road located on the east side, just north of the county home, a site previously used for parking for fairgoers and sportsmen's events.

The Federated Sportsmen's Clubs of Ulster County and the Ulster County Agricultural Society Inc., which runs the annual fair, wants to retain that parking area and has come out strongly against the county's plans to move the east side parking area to the west.

And, so far there seems to be no middle ground on which the groups agree.

County Planning Director Herbert Hekler said the change in the pool site location was made due to the fact that the soil on the west side of Libertyville Road, where it was to be placed, is "a wet area" and "it would be foolish" to build a pool there. The county selected instead the east side of the road where there is well drained gravel.

Walter J. Pokowitz, president of the Ulster County Agricultural Society, concerned that fairgoers would have to use the wet area for parking cars, recalled that he "has strong memories of removing 98 per cent of parked cars with tractors" after they became mired in the area one year.

Pokowitz said his organization feels that "the current plans for the County Recreation Area will mean an end to the Ulster County Fair."

Hekler disagrees, pointing out that the county highway department will construct new parking fields on the west side of the road allocating the same amount of parking as is presently used (about three acres) and even supplying more parking area if it is needed.

"We are not taking away anything," Hekler said, "we are merely shifting the pool and parking areas. He indicated that the Highway Department will begin new construction of the parking area as soon as possible but that there may be some conflict in that pool construction is being started first—this winter. He said he is hopeful that the parking facilities will be ready in time for next year's fair and Federated Sportsmen's Show.

Frederick Faerber, president of the Ulster County Federated Sportsmen's Clubs, feels the design changes could cause some problems in operating the 1975 fair and show.

He said he would like to see a special executive meeting of the Ulster County Legislature called in order that interested parties might air their views.

He feels it should be determined "once and for all what county department will control the county grounds at New Paltz.

Faerber does not want the county to spend more money but advocates a manager for the facilities who would schedule activity dates, through the cooperation of sportsmen and the agricultural members.

Pokowitz maintains that his group feels strongly that it was treated unfairly in the making of a unilateral decision on the disposition of the grounds—particularly in view of previous assurance they received from legislative members that "no immediate project or future plan for the recreation area would interfere with the fair."

The Ulster County Fair Board would also like to see a meeting arranged as quickly as possible with members of five legislative committees concerned with the property "so that, hopefully, our mutual problems and concerns can be fairly and successfully resolved."

JDA Approves Loan

KINGSTON The New York Job Development Authority has approved a $25,500 loan that will help Ulster Precision, Inc. purchase the former Daily Freeman building at 3 Broadway.

Ulster Precision, a sheet metal job shop currently located in Ulster Park, plans to purchase and renovate the three-story building at the foot of Broadway for use as its main plant and headquarters.

The Freeman, which vacated the building in November after publishing at the site for more than 100 years, is now located at 79 Hurley Avenue.

The total cost of Ulster Precision's renovation project has been estimated at $85,000. Additional financing will be provided by Roudout National Bank and Ulster Precision. The three-story building, which contains a total of 16,431 square feet, will be renovated to meet Ulster Precision's requirements.

Ulster Precision, incorporated in 1969, purchased the plant and equipment of a defunct machine shop in Ulster Park. Its customers now include some of the largest industrial firms in the nation. The firm currently employs 12 workers, but plans to expand its work force shortly to 20.

Arrangements for the JDA loan were made through the Kingston Area Industrial Development Corp. and the Kingston regional office of the New York State Department of Commerce.

Ulster Precision's loan is the fourth awarded in Ulster County this year. Previous loans have been made to Rotron, Inc., Jay Steel, Inc. and Wonderly's.

Europe Drastically Slashes Oil Consumption for the Year

BRUSSELS (UPI) — The Common Market said today Europe has drastically slashed its oil consumption this year, with some nations reducing their intake far beyond the 10 per cent cutback recommended by the United States.

The Common Market's executive commission, in a report to the European Parliament, said oil use in the first half of the year fell by 15.5 per cent in West Germany, 9.9 per cent in Britain and 6.1 per cent in France, compared with the first six months of 1973.

Other, smaller, Common Market nations did even better. Consumption of oil and oil products was down by 15.7 per cent in Denmark, 22.8 per cent in Holland, 19.1 per cent in Belgium, 16 per cent in Luxembourg. Consumption was down 4.1 per cent in Italy and 3.7 per cent in Ireland. No over-all, European-wide

the 10 per cent cutback urged by the United States as a way industrial nations must cope with the energy crisis. The figures were issued as the nine Common Market nations met to debate energy problems. Common Market sources said there was no hope the debate would produce the long-sought European energy policy.

The European summit meeting in Paris last week urged such a policy "in the shortest possible time."

Proposals produced after two years of work, however, have been vetoed by France and Britain, and European officials admit there is more energy cooperation between the United States and Europe than within the Common Market.

The officials said energy ministers of the nine nations planned only to discuss an overall policy without trying to agree on it.

Gold Price Jumps to Near Record

BRUSSELS (UPI) — The price of gold jumped today to near the $190 an ounce record mark it first hit one month ago. The U.S. dollar declined on world markets and plunged to a new low against the Swiss franc.

Gold gained $6.75 overnight in Zurich to open at $189 an ounce. In London, bullion dealers marked the metal up $5 for a $188 opening. Early London trading pushed the price to $189.25, but it retreated to $187.25 an hour after the market opening.

The dollar opened in Zurich at 2.583, down from 2.601 Swiss francs to another all-time low. The previous low opening was Monday's 2.60. Swiss dealers said they were besieged by persons wanting to sell the American currency.

'Jewish University' at New Paltz

NEW PALTZ The Jewish Student's Association (JSA) of the State University College at New Paltz is organizing a "Jewish Free University," a series of non-credit courses open to both the student community and the general public.

David Shtulman, president of the JSA, said that the program would open the first week in February, and would "start off small."

Tentatively scheduled are courses on the Mishnah or oral law, a Jewish philosophy class, a class on Chasidic philosophy (or Jewish mysticism), and a weekly series of open discussions on any topic which the Jewish student community feels is relevant. Shtulman said that these topics will include "What does Judaism say about getting high?" "Judaism and sex," and "The woman's place in Judaism."

Any other topics for this series will be chosen by the people in attendance the previous week.

There are to be weekly lectures by guest speakers from the mid-Hudson area or New York City on the world Jewish community. There also will be Jewish consciousness raising groups and various academic forums, Shtulman said.

These forums will be on such topics as the Palestinian issue; Israeli social problems; the Jewish poor in the United States; reform; conservative and orthodox Jewry, and the Holocaust of Nazi Germany.

There will be Israeli folk-dancing and singing every second week.

The Jewish Free University will be very flexible to meet the needs of its students, Shtulman said. However, he said that "the Jewish community has got to express its interests in what it wants to learn."

"The Jewish studies curriculum at New Paltz is extremely inadequate because Jewish interest at New Paltz has been very low," he said. "It's important for the Jewish community to be able to learn about its heritage and culture."

"For this to work," he said, "it's necessary for people to come out and tell us what they want to learn, and we'll do our best to try and offer it."

Classes will be taught by local professors, rabbis and guest lecturers from various national organizations. Shtulman said that all courses will be taught by qualified lecturers.

Dr. Emanuel White, the coordinator of Jewish studies at New Paltz, Dr. Gilbert Brenner, chairman of the geology department, and Dr. Judah Adelson, associate professor of history, are working with Shtulman on this project.

Shtulman is also starting a weekly newsletter. Those interested in receiving this newsletter or in offering suggestions can write Shtulman in care of the Jewish Students Association, State University College, Student Union Building Rm. 313, New Paltz, New York 12561, or at 22 Colonial Drive in New Paltz.

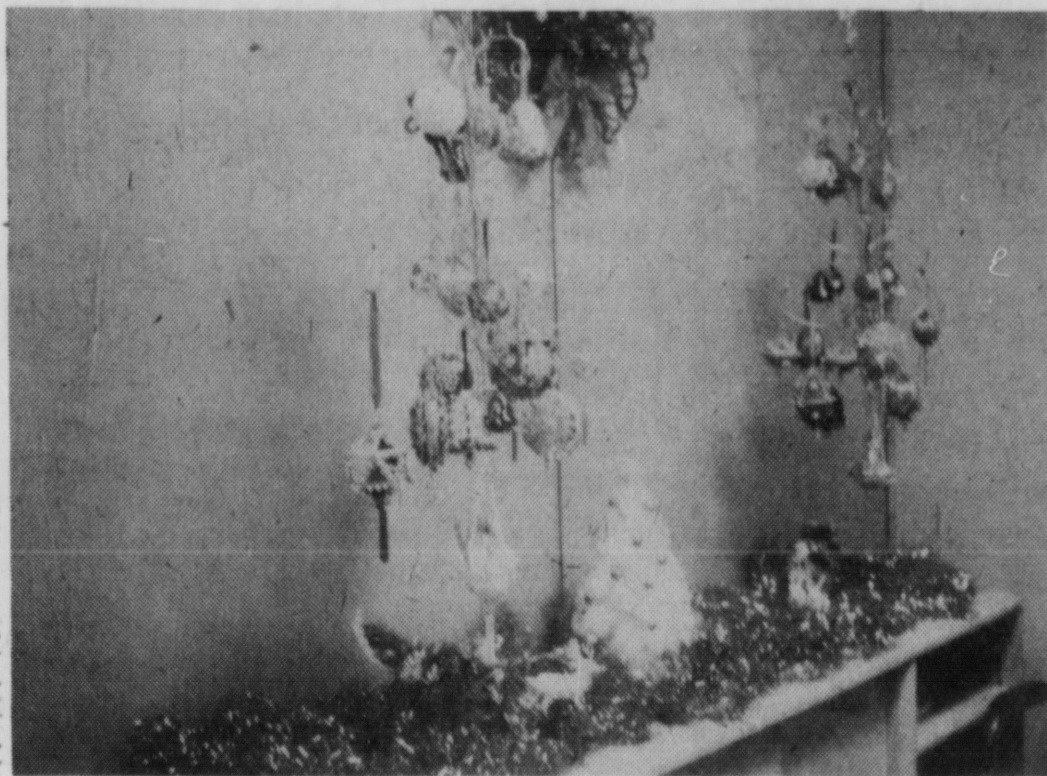

Art Work On Display

KINGSTON

Art work by students at Kingston High School will be on display at the Central Hudson office on Broadway until January.

The exhibit, which includes drawings, paintings and creative prints, was completed under the direction of Kenneth Brett, Harriet Hason, and Diana Stigbert, members of the high school art faculty.

The public is invited to the exhibit.

RVC Schools All Dressed Up for Christmas

The Rondout Valley Central schools are now dressed up for Christmas. School officials say the "most stunning" of the many displays in the schools is this one, by Administrative Assistant Mrs. Gloria Starling, in the high school principal's office. Mrs. Starling arranges an appropriate display for nearly every holiday during the school year.

Awaiting Bowie's Go-Ahead

NEW YORK (UPI) — Commissioner Bowie Kuhn will get his turn at bat in the free agent case of Jim "Catfish" Hunter that has rocked the baseball establishment—and once he does, the bidding war in all its fury will be on for the Oakland Athletics' premier righthander.

Kuhn, in a "better late than never" gesture, has told the baseball owners via telegram that any bidding for Hunter, who won his free agency from a neutral arbitrator Monday, would be considered tampering until an official ruling is handed down by the commissioner's office.

Of course, Kuhn has really only one way to rule on the Hunter case inasmuch as the arbitration proceeding which Hunter used in presenting his case was set up by the baseball establishment. And, had the commissioner acted earlier—before Hunter entered into arbitration—a compromise with A's owner Charles O. Finley might have been worked out which would have avoided what has now become a landmark "black eye" for the baseball establishment.

Nevertheless, the majority of baseball officials eager to land the four-time 20-victory Cy Young Award-winning hurler are keeping their checkbooks in tow until Kuhn has his final say.

"Yes, we received a telegram from the commissioner that in effect says arbitration can't make Hunter a free agent, only the commissioner of baseball can," acknowledged a Kansas City Royals' official late Monday afternoon.

"But even though the commissioner still has to rule him a free agent after considering the evidence and reviewing the fact, it seems like only a technical point."

Minnesota Twins' owner

SPORTS TODAY

Calvin Griffith, although not expected to be in there bidding with the real high rollers like the Yankees, Mets, Red Sox and Dodgers, agreed that Kuhn still had to hand down the official word of Hunter's free agency.

"I would not attempt to contact 'Catfish' Hunter about joining the club until the commissioner of baseball made an official statement on the situation," Griffith said. "The announcement has come from the Players Association and I will await an advisory from the commissioner."

Hunter, who won his freedom when Finley breached his contract by failing to deposit $50,000 of the ace righthander's $100,000 salary with an insurance company as a tax shelter, was in no hurry to negotiate what will surely wind up as a seven-figure deal.

"I'm going to listen to all the offers first," Hunter said from his home in Hertford, N.C.

As for whether any offer from Finley's would be considered with the others, Hunter replied: "Sure, but he's going to have to match the other clubs. Yes, I'd go back if the money were right."

However, off his past history of stubbornness, Finley is not expected to join the bidding war for his "ex-pitcher." More likely, the strong-willed A's owner, who took the Yankees to court last winter over the legal rights to Manager Dick Williams, will turn again to the courts in an effort to retain Hunter.

Meanwhile, amid the embarrassment of Kuhn and the rest of the clubowners' over the decision, the mood of the baseball establishment could best be summed up by SVAN Diego Padres President Buzie Bavasi. Said Bavasi: "The decision was harsh, but the boy got a fair hearing and won."

Devine Has Some Questions to Answer

DAN DEVINE

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI) — Dan Devine was to meet the press today in his first official act as Notre Dame football coach and perhaps fill in the details of why he switched from coach of the Green Bay Packers to a pressure-packed college job.

Devine quit as coach and general manager of the Packers Monday, with one year to go on his initial five-year contract, to replace Ara Parseghian as mentor of the Fighting Irish. A Notre Dame spokesman said Devine signed a five-year contract. Other terms of the agreement were not disclosed. Parseghian resigned Sunday because he was "physically exhausted and emotionally drained" after 24 years as a college coach.

Obviously, Devine was hired by Notre Dame before he left the Packers. Parseghian said that the Rev. Edmund N.P. Joyce, vice president of Notre Dame and chairman of the board in control of athletics, knew of his resignation in advance and thus had time to seek out a successor.

Devine's appointment was approved by the Irish athletic board Monday, shortly before Athletic Director Ed "Moose" Krause announced his selection. Almost simultaneously Devine resigned from the Packers.

There had been numerous rumors that Devine would be discharged by Green Bay on the basis that the Packers performed less expertly than anticipated. Green Bay wound up the season with a loss to Atlanta to finish 6-8. Devine's career record at Green Bay was 25-27-4.

Devine met with Packer President Dominic Olejnik Sunday night and Monday morning turned in his resignation, which was accepted promptly by the executive committee. Devine did not attend the meeting at which Krause announced his selection to replace Parseghian.

Devine said he had turned down the Notre Dame job once previously, and it was known that he was among the candidates in 1963 when Parseghian was chosen and left Northwestern for Notre Dame.

Devine coached for 16 years in college with an overall record of 120-40-8 at Arizona State and Missouri, ranking 30th among the winningest college coaches. VIS 1/2 & 3/4 Arizona State team was the first in school history to go unbeaten and he had one unbeaten team, in 1960, at Missouri. His Missouri teams won four bowl games, the first time the Tigers ever triumphed in a postseason contest.

Krause said Notre Dame had "long been aware" of Dan Devine's successful career at every level, and that Notre Dame "felt fortunate in getting a man of Dan's stature."

Parseghian meanwhile was working on plans for his last game as Notre Dame head coach, on the night of Dec. 31 in the Orange Bowl against unbeaten and No. 1 ranked Alabama.

Following that game, he will work on the Notre Dame developmental program in a "non-athletic" capacity for a year, when he planned to review his status and determine whether he would want to return to coaching.

Devine, who will be 5 on Dec. 23, is approximately a year younger than Parseghian. Devine and his wife, the former Joanne Brookhart, have seven children.

No Doubt About It

Tennessee wide receiver Larry Seivers (89) holds aloft winning touchdown ball as officials signal the score in final minutes of Liberty Bowl Monday night in Memphis. Vols won over Maryland, 7-3. (UPI)

Vols' Liberty Win Marred By Death of Coach's Dad

MEMPHIS (UPI) — Tennessee's celebration of a dramatic Liberty Bowl victory over Maryland turned quickly somber Monday night when word reached the dressing room of the collapse of Coach Bill Battle's father in the stands with a heart attack.

William R. Battle Sr., 66, collapsed minutes after backup quarterback Randy Wallace aimed a high pass toward the end zone and Larry Seivers made a leaping catch that gave the Volunteers a 7-3 victory.

The elder Battle, former athletic director at Birmingham Southern University in Alabama, died early today at a local hospital. His son was by his side, as he had been while emergency crews applied external heart massage and administered oxygen at the stadium in an unsuccessful effort to save the senior Battle.

"We're glad we won," Seivers said when word of the collapse of the coach's father reached the players. "But how can we be happy?"

The players and assistant coaches quickly ended post-game interviews. They broke instead into small groups for private conversations.

The game Tennessee had just won was less than spectacular, with the only scoring for the first 57 minutes a 28-yard field goal by Maryland's Steve MikeMayer in the second quarter. Bob Smith returned a line-drive Tennessee punt 63 yards to set up the score.

Tennessee's Ricky Townsend missed a 37-yard field goal later in the first half and Maryland drives ended with a lost fumble and an intercepted pass.

Throughout an error-filled third quarter during which neither team mounted a serious scoring threat, the overcapacity crowd of 51,284 and a national television audience must have thought the fireworks were exhausted during a patriotic pre-game show that featured a Liberty Bell suspended high in the air.

Tennessee opened the final period with a drive from its own 21 to the Maryland five. Starting quarterback Ctdredge Holloway then lost 12 yards in three plays and Townsend prepared for another fieldgoal try.

A bad snap from center gave Holloway, the holder, trouble and Maryland's premier defensive tackle, Randy White, broke through to block the kick. Holloway was shaken up on the play and spent the rest of the game walking unsteadily along the sidelines.

The winning Tennessee touchdown came, with 2:38 to play, after Maryland punter Phil Wagenheim dropped a high snap from center and Tennessee defenders pounced on him at the Maryland seven. Three plays later, after losing four yards, Wallace found Seivers in the end zone for the winning touchdown.

Townsend added the extra point.

"It was a perfectly thrown ball and Seivers made a great catch," Tennessee assistant Lide Huggins said. "He has great jumping ability and on that particular play, we throw the ball high in the hope he can jump up and make the catch."

Maryland moved quickly downfield after the Tennessee score and Bob Avellini hit Frank Russell with a 20-yard pass that would have won the game, but the receiver landed out of the end zone with the ball. On the next play, Ernie Ward intercepted for Tennessee and the Maryland threat was over.

"It was just a question of mistakes—crucial enalties and fumbles," Maryland Coach Jerry Claiborne said of the loss. "The defense played super."

White led the Maryland defenders with 12 tackles and four assists, in addition to the blocked field goal and a recovered fumble. He was named the game's Most Valuable Player.

Stabler: AFC Player of Year

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ken Stabler, the man who led the National Football League in touchdown passes and carried the Oakland Raiders to the best record in the league this season, Monday was named United Press International's American Conference Player of the Year.

Stabler, the smooth left-hander who finally won a starting berth only last season, was named on 16 of the 39 ballots cast by UPI's panel of sports writers, three from each conference city. Cincinnati quarterback Ken Anderson was second with 10 votes.

The only other player to draw any real support was Denver running back Otis Armstrong, the NFL's leading rusher, who drew six votes.

Stabler is the fourth Oakland player to win the UPI award in its 15-year history, the most of any team, and he is the third Raider quarterback in the last six years to win. Daryle Lamonica, the man Stabler displaced as a starter last year, won in 1969 and George Blanda won in 1970 with his gamewinning heroics.

Stabler's selection ends a two-year hold on the award by O.J. Simpson, Buffalo's record-setting running back. Simpson, a runaway winner last year, had only one vote this season.

The Raiders finished 12-2 and were the first team to clinch a division title. Much of the credit belongs to Stabler. He was second in the AFC to Anderson in passing and threw 26 touchdown passes, by far the best in the league. The closest to him were Joe Namath of the New York Jets and Jim Hart of St. Louis, each with 20.

Perhaps his most spectacular performance came against Cincinnati, when with only 1:36 left and no time out remaining, he took Oakland almost the length of the field to set up the winning TD.

KEN STABLER

Skorich Fired

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The famous last words of any coach who has just been fired are— "You've got to win in this business and I didn't."

That's what Nick Skorich said Monday after Cleveland Browns' owner Art Modell dismissed him as head coach of the Browns, the day after the team ended the worst season in club history with a 4-10 mark.

The final defeat Sunday, a 28-24 loss at Houston which was the Oilers' first victory over Cleveland, was not the last straw, according to Modell, who made his decision "in final form" 10 days to two weeks earlier.

But that loss gave the Browns their worst percentage ever, only their second losing season and their first basement finish in the AFC Central Division.

"With deep regret," Modell said at the start of a 15-minute joint appearance with Skorich at Cleveland Stadium, "I have asked my friend Nick Skorich to step aside as head coach."

Field Limited to 20 For Kentucky Derby

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — The Kentucky Derby, the nation's turf classic, has become such an overwhelming success in recent years that they've had to change the rules. The Churchill Downs Board of Directors moved Monday to limit future Derby fields to no more than 20 thoroughbred 3-year-olds.

Last spring, it had been feared the number of entries for the 100th running of the Derby might force Aorerna's premiere horse race into two divisions. The centennial race field was reduced to 23 starters, however, by Derby day.

To avoid such a problem in the future, the board ruled that preference be given on the basis of lifetime earnings at the time of entry if more than 20 horses were entered. With 23 nolds in the field last May, some owners and trainers complained that the field was too unwieldy to give each horse a fair chance.

In setting its limit of 20 Derby starters, the board further stipulated that any entries eliminated from future fields would receive a full refund of nomination and entry fees totaling $4,100.

Southern Cal Passes Toughest Test

United Press International Bob Boyd said the game would prove "how good we really are."

Boyd's Southern California basketball team, ranked fifth in the nation, came through in its toughest test yet Monday night with a 97-96 win at Houston.

"I don't think this game was that close," said Boyd, whose Trojans are now 5-0. "I'm proud of the way we played. We beat a very fine team."

The Trojans, behind Clint Chapman's 30 points, led by 13 midway through the second half. The Cougars, led by lotis Birdsong and Louis Dunbar, battled back to send the contest down to the wire.

A pair of free throws by Biff Burrell gave the Trojans a three-point lead with 10 seconds remaining to put the game away.

"I don't think we're going to make a habit of losing less like that," said Boyd. "Houston went to a gambling, half-court press and they jarred the ball loose a couple of times. I hope we learned something from it."

John Lambert added 16 for USC, while Gus Williamos and Bob Trowbridge scored 12 apiece. Birdsong was high for Houston with 29 and Dunbar had 28.

The Trojans now prepare for the Trojan Nlassic, which opens Friday night at the Post, With Eason, Here To Face Ulster Quintet

STONE RIDGE One of the Mid-Hudson Conference's leading teams comes to Senate Gym tonight when Ulster County Community College's basketball squad plays host to Post Junior College at 7:30 p.m.

The contest had been scheduled for Monday night but was postponed because of the inclement weather and hazardous road conditions.

Post brings to Ulster one of the country's top scorers, the No. 1 point producer in the conference, sophomore Pete Eason.

The Senators will counter with their dazzling backcourt duo of Rachid Walker and Chris Cummings and the improved front line of Joe McCall, Carl Mabry, and either Ron Walker, Fletcher Abrams, or Kim Anderson.

UCC enters tonight's action with a 3-1 record under new coach Mike Bernstein. The Senators' last game was Friday night when they turned back Orange, 89-69.

Ulster hosts Sullivan Wednesday, then travels to LaGuardia and Manhattan this weekend.

Sports Arena. Jacksonville meets New Mexico in the opener Friday while the Trojans take on Vanderbilt in the nitecap. Winners and losers will play each other Saturday night.

"If we can win the tournament," Boyd said, "we'll be 7-and0 and on our way to a real good season."

In another key game Monday night, Steve Green scored 29 points, 18 of them in the first half, as No. 2 ranked Indiana crushed Toledo. Green and Scott May helped the Hoosiers surge to a 44-33 halftime lead and they kept up the pressure in the second half to run their record to 6-0.

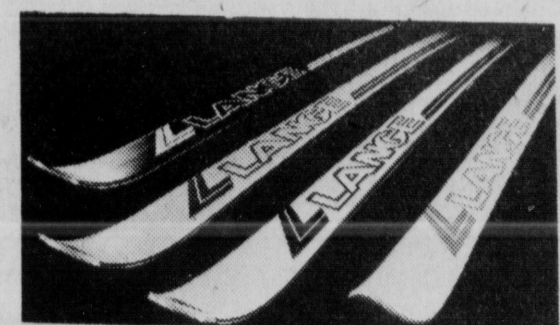

Elsewhere, Riley Dotson and Terry Thomas combined for 40 points to lead Detroit to an 82-69 victory over Bowling Green and Lindsay Hairston's 23 points carried Michigan State to a 91-59 rout of Northern Michigan. Chad Nelson's fivefoot jump shot with only 32 seconds left in overtime lifted Minnesota to a 53-52 victory over previously unbeaten Stanford and Carl Bird and Rich Hawthorne each scored 20 points as California beat Colorado 85-76.

Doug Brookins' 32 points paced Creighton to an 81-69 rout of Southern Illinois.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bowie Kuhn has bungled the Jim "Catfish" Hunter case so badly, it is beyond human repair, and while it certainly is true that everybody is entitled to a mistake, an error, or a piece of poor judgement, this one approaches something closer to sheer catastrophe for both baseball and its commissioner.

The fact that Hunter, ace of the Oakland A's pitching staff, has been declared a free agent and immediately goes into the market place available to the highest bidder, is one thing.

That line forms to the right and you can reasonably expect such well-heeled clubs as the Red Sox, Dodgers, Yankees, Phillies, Mets, Reds and Rangers to start falling all over themselves bidding for the American League's 28-year-old Cy Young Award winner at anywhere from a half-million dollars up.

Jim Hunter won his free agency on a clause in his contract he signed with Oakland owner Charlie Finley last winter. Charlie Finley is the one who has to answer for that, and even though the only one he really has to answer to is himself, knowing him, he won't take this decision lying down at all.

When a disagreement arose between Hunter and Finley over Hunter's contract, it became Kuhn's obvious responsibility to make a ruling of some kind, take some affirmative action.

He never did that. Moreover, he allowed himself to be influenced, if not downright intimidated, by Marvin Miller, the strong-willed head of the Players Association. Considering Kuhn's position as Commissioner, the one supreme power in all baseball who is supposed to render decisions equitably and with neither fear nor favor, his action, or rather his inaction, becomes unpardonable.

In a nutshell, Bowie Kuhn blew this one sky high. Here was a situation calling for him to come in for the ball, charge it, and then make the play.

Instead, he misplayed the ball like the lawyer he is. He stayed back on his heels and waited too long, until it was by him, and now, unfortunately for him, the ball game is over.

So you can better understand what happened, you should know something about the two-year contract Hunter signed with Finley last winter.

The figure on the face of the contract calls for Hunter to receive $100,000 each year, this one and next. In addition, a special covenant section in the contract reads this way: "In consideration of this agreement, Charles Finley agrees to pay the sum of $50,000 to any firm, person or corporation designated by Hunter, said compensation to be deferred compensation, payable as earned."

Boiled down what that means is Hunter wanted to take $50,000 and have Finley pay the other $50,000, the deferred portion, to an insurance company for an investment annuity purpose consistent with the tax laws. Hunter felt this would serve as a good tax shelter for him.

When he discovered Finley wasn't making those payments to the insurance company, he complained. Finley said why should he make those payments? Here was the $50,000 in a lump sum if Hunter wanted it, but Hunter said he didn't want it, not that way. By Finley's failure to execute the contract, Hunter contended he had become a free agent under baseball's rules.

Eventually, Miller and Bowie Kuhn both became aware of the growing disagreement between Hunter and Finley. Marvin Miller worked with arbitration boards in behalf of labor before he was hired by the ballplayers and is a firm believer in the process. He was primarily responsible for introducing the arbitration procedure between players and owners into baseball. Now he lanted the Hunter-Finley case to go to arbitration rather than have Kuhn rule on it. The case certainly fell within Kuhn's jurisdiction, but Miller didn't want him making the ruling. He felt Hunter had a much better chance going to arbitration, and he was right.

Stay out of it, he told Kuhn. He told him some other things, too. Miller said this was a dispute that could only be settled by an arbitrator and that it did not come within the jurisdiction of the Commissioner's office.

Why not? Because Marvin Miller said so? Who's Marvin Miller, the last word in baseball?

At this point, Bowie Kuhn should've taken the bull by the horns or the Catfish by the hand and said to him something like, let's cut out all this nonsense! You signed a two-year contract with the Oakland A's, and if the precise terms of the contract are not being fulfilled by Charlie Finley, I'll see to it that they are immediately. Now you go back out there and let what you really want to anyway—play baseball.

Did Bowie Kuhn say anything like that?

He did not.

Instead, he issued one of those weak-tea statements of his in Los Angeles during the World Series which said:

"Since there is a genuine dispute between the player and owner over how payment should be made, the dispute should go to arbitration."

This was exactly what Marvin Miller wanted.

Now before you go away shaking your head, here's one of those trivia questions: can you remember who was Baseball Commissioner before Marvin Miller was?

St. Joseph's Quintets Score on Three Fronts

The basketball season at St. Joseph's School couldn't have had a better opening. The varsity, the junior varsity, the Pee Wees and the Small Fry all emerged victorious in their first games.

St. Joseph's varsity topped St. Peter's of Rosendale while the JV's blasted Immaculate Conception, 55-17. The Pee Wees also bombed IC, 49-9, and the Small Fry topped St. Augustine of Highland, 18-16.

Bill Carey dumped in 12 points to lead the varsity's victory. St. Joseph's took a commanding 18-2 first period lead and coasted to the win. Phil Formica had 10 for the losers.

The JV's also had a big first period, jumping out to a 15-2 advantage. John Swint finished with 14 points, and Joe Uhl added nine.

The Pee Wees had little trouble with Immaculate Conception, running up a 24-3 lead at halftime and not allowing the losers more than four points in any quarter. The Small Fry had to hustle against St. Augustine, however, with John Albany's seven points leading the win.

Tom Coddington New Ulster Mat Coach

STONE RIDGE
Tom Coddington, a former outstanding wrestler at Ulster County Community College, has been appointed coach of the reinstated wrestling team at the college, Director of Athletics Al DeBernardo announced today.

Coddington, a resident of Accord, also will teach part-time at the college and is slated to be the instructor of a wrestling course in the spring semester.

A group of students at Ulster earlier this fall petitioned the Athletic Department to reinstate wrestling as a varsity sport. The Athletic Department forwarded the petition to the Student Government Organization. After studying the request, the SGO recommended to the Board of Directors of the Ulster Community College Association, Inc. that the wrestling team should be reactivated.

The Association Board approved the request in October and a search was started to find a coach. DiBernardo subsequently recommended that Coddington be named as coach and the recommendation was approved.

Last June, the Association

TOM CODDINGTON

Board voted to eliminate three sports—wrestling, bowling and cross country—for the 1974-75 academic year because of the increasing cost of maintaining intercollegiate sports and the new emphasis on women's sports.

DiBernardo said the team will compete in the Mid-Hudson Conference and reported the first match will be on Jan. 15, when the Senators travel to Herkimer for a triangular meet against Herkimer Community College and the Colgate University junior varsity.

In March, 1973, the UCCC Board of Trustees passed a resolution recognizing Coddington for his "consistently fine performance" as a wrestler and commended him for being voted the outstanding wrestler in the Region XV tournament and being a quarter finalist in the National Junior College Athletic Association (NJCAA) tournament.

Coddington, who graduated from Ulster in June, 1973, was an outstanding wrestler for two seasons at the community college, compiling a 28-8-0 record. He formerly starred as a wrestler at Rondout Valley Central School. In his second year at Ulster, Coddington won the 126-pound championship in Region XV competition and competed in the NJCAA championships in Worthington, Minn.

Correction

In Monday's Freeman it was incorrectly reported that second team All-DCSL football guard Charlie Walker played for Beacon High School. Walker is from Saugerties High.

Comets and Redskins Tower Over UCAL Rivals

By Steve Kane

KINGSTON

If last Friday's Ulster County Athletic League basketball results were any indication, and they probably were, the games involving Fallsburgh and Liberty this year will be awful mismatches.

Fallsburgh ripped Walkill by 69 points, and Liberty beat New Paltz by 51, and about the only question remaining seems to be what will happen when those two powerhouses meet.

The rest of the teams, though, will be scrambling all the way. While Fallsburgh hosts Marlboro and Liberty meets Onteora tonight, the closer game will be Walkill at Ellenville, Highland at Rondout, New Paltz at Coleman and Red Hook at Pine Bush.

Since Walkill had the misfortune of facing the Comets last time out, an estimate of the Panthers' strength is hard to determine. Football injuries were supposed to slow the Walkill start, but big Tom Berryann was healthy enough to dump in 16 points in the losing cause. He will be tough for the smaller Ellies to handle.

Ellenville would have been considered a pushover except for the fact that it stunned Onteora in the opener, holding OCS to 31 points. Mike Crowley scored 18 in that one.

The best game of the night may be at Rondout where the muscular Big Blue shoot for two in a row. The Ganders came within two points of Marlboro last week and may be tall enough to cause problems for Dick Becker's Division II hopefuls.

At Coleman, coach Bill DuBois is trying to regroup in time for New Paltz.

"I was dissatisfied with our opener, sure," he said, referring to a loss in Red Hook. "I felt we were a better team than we showed. We only played about two-and-a-half minutes of team ball. And we had 24 turnovers."

But that was Coleman's first game, and the Raiders had had an opportunity to get the jitters out with a previous contest. DuBois was pleased with the rebounding of Pete Gallagher and is still looking to beat .500 this year.

New Paltz also had a rough start, so in that respect the squads are even.

"We couldn't learn much scouting them against Liberty," DuBois said. "We know (Lorenzo) Simmons is good, and we'll try to shut him off. We'll try to put pressure on them."

The Statesmen picked up a few injuries in a hurry. Rick Miers is out for six weeks with torn ligaments, and Kevin Coughlin and Jim Kearney are doubtful for tonight.

Red Hook will have its hands full at Pine Bush where the Bushmen will look for some scoring to go with their height advantage. Ron Coon, Jim Merriken and Joe Simmons powered the balanced Raiders to their maiden win last week.

Marlboro, the defending Division II titlist, has Manny Lopergolo back in the ranks, but that might not do much good against Fallsburgh. The Comets have never lost a UCAL game and don't figure to break that streak on their home court.

Liberty is just about everybody's pick to win it all this year, and that won't make life pleasant for the Onteora cagers.

Peterson Rescues Sawyers

SAUGERTIES

George Peterson, a senior wrestling for the first time, won the heavyweight contest to give Saugerties High a 24-22 squeaker over Ravena in the seasonal opener.

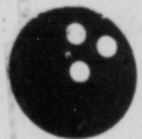

Peterson earned a 12-9 decision over Les Van Alstyne, the Albany County champion, in what Coach Hank Smith described as "a pretty rugged match."

Peterson's win climaxed a rousing rally by the Sawyers who were trailing 5-0 at the end of the first five matches. Steve Bogert snapped the Ravena streak by winning the 132-pound class.

Other Saugerties winners were Dave Reinick, Rich Dussol, George Redder and Rich Dussol.

CHRISTMAS IS A TIME FOR REMEMBERING...

Family, old friends and past times... and we remember the little children and families in need.

On that one special day our hearts should be opened to all in a spirit of living.

But there are many we seem to forget every year. We're speaking about the many thousands of aged and infirm citizens who have contributed so much in so many ways in the past, and who are now, in their twilight years, often neglected and unremembered...even at Christmas.

Let's change that this year. WKOT COUNTRY RADIO wants you to join us in remembering our Senior Citizens this Christmas. Remember them with a small gift showing that we care.

To help us gather as many gifts as possible, WKOT will be broadcasting live from an Uptown Kingston store, and we invite you to visit with us and bring your gift.

Listen to WKOT/1550 RADIO on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Dec. 19-20-21 and we'll tell you where to deposit your gift. LET'S REMEMBER THE ELDERLY... We owe them so much.

Former British Official Named as Communist Spy

LONDON (UPI) — British newspapers said today former Aviation Minister and Postmaster General John Stonehouse, who is missing in the United States, has been named by a Czechoslovak defector as a Communist spy.

Prime Minister Harold Wilson, under growing pressure from Parliament to clear up the affair, announced he would make a statement to the House of Commons later today.

Wilson acted as parliamentarians demanded a government statement on newspaper and other allegations surrounding the career and disappearance of the 49-year-old former Labor Party minister.

The newspapers said British intelligence was studying the allegations in an attempt to discover the whereabouts of Stonehouse, last seen Nov. 21 when he left his Miami Beach, Fla., hotel to go for a swim.

Since his disappearance the British press has reported that he had business debts, was under police guard and had been the subject of an intelligence file while a government minister.

A fellow MP said Monday some parliamentarians thought Stonehouse had been an agent for the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency and demanded an investigation of CIA activities in Britain.

Newspapers said Stonehouse was one of three MPs named as spy by Josef Frolik, former head of Czechoslovak intelligence in Britain. Frolik defected to the United States in 1969 after the Soviet-led invasion of his country and lives under an assumed name in America.

During debriefing by the CIA, Frolik named many contacts, among them Stonehouse and two other MPs, the newspapers said. "His allegations about the activities of the three British MPs, including Mr. Stonehouse, form an important part of the dossier from his debriefing," the London Times said. It did not name the other two persons involved.

Amnesty Surge Expected

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For the first time the number of military deserters volunteering for President Ford's earned amnesty program has stopped declining.

The number of deserters has been declining steadily since Ford announced the program in September. In the first full week that the amnesty center at Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Ind., set appointments for deserters, it averaged 60 men a day. That fell off to 31 per day in the 5th week and only 13 a day in the 11th week of December.

Then last week, the 12th of the program, the turnout was 28 per day, according to averages calculated Monday from the daily amnesty statistics available at the Pentagon.

Military officers have long predicted that more deserters would show up once they saw there were no tricks in the amnesty program and the early comers were being treated fairly.

Most predicted a big surge in the last weeks before the offer expires Jan. 31. Some predicted the surge would start before Christmas as young men decided they wanted to come home for the holidays.

Shortly after Ford announced the program in September, a group of deserters met in Canada and denounced it, demanding unconditional amnesty instead of the Ford program of work in low paying public service jobs for up to two years.

The group also called for a boycott of Ford's program and promised demonstrations in the United States against it. So far no demonstrations of any notable size have materialized.

To date, 1,761 deserters or about one-sixth of those eligible have volunteered for the program. More than half of all the eligibles have telephoned or written Ft. Benjamin Harrison to inquire into the offer, and the number of calls has risen substantially since Thanksgiving.

Edward Pierce Dead at 100

NEW YORK (UPI) — Edward A. Pierce, one of the founders of the brokerage firm of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith, died Monday. He was 100 years old.

Pierce remained active in the firm, the industry's oldest, until his retirement in 1969 as a vice president and director.

Born in Orrington, Maine, Pierce managed a lumber firm before he arrived in Wall Street in 1901 as a brokers' clerk for A.A. Housman and Co.

In 1921, he became a full partner and, six years later, the firm's name was changed to E.A. Pierce and Co. It merged with Merrill Lynch and Co., in 1940, and, a year later, with Fenner and Beane. It took its present name in 1958.

During the 1930s, Pierce headed the committee that reorganized the New York Stock Exchange. He also helped draft legislation creating the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Pierre's New $100,000 Limousine

Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau (C) is shown with his new "shotgun silver" Cadillac Dec. 10, as he leaves Parliament Hill for lunch. The estimated value of the limousine (owned officially by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police) is close to $100,000.00. It is believed to be built like a tank and is bullet-proof. The color is almost an exact match for Trudeau's own Mercedes 300 SL sports car which he drives in the summer. (UPI)

Ladies of the Night Invited to Big Fete

COLOMA, Calif. (UPI) — Two of the west's better known madams were invited Saturday by Coloma civic leaders to be special guests next month at the community's 28th annual Gold Discovery Celebration. The madams were Sally Stanford, onetime prominent brothel operator in San Francisco, and Beverly Harrell, who runs the Cottontail Ranch in Nevada, were asked to lead the parade.

"Ladies of the night are part of Coloma's colorful past," explained Art McKeown, president of the local booster club. He said the celebration theme this time would be "Ladies of the Gold Discovery Era."

The two guests will lead a parade including local women wearing fashions of Jan. 25, 1975, when James Marshall's discovery at Coloma inspired the 49er Gold Rush. In a few months, the town's population grew from a handful to 10,000.

Miss Stanford, whose brothel closed two decades ago, is a restaurant owner and member of the Sausalito City Council. Miss Harrell, whose Cottontail Ranch is well known in Nevada, ran last month for the legislature and missed election by a narrow margin.

One Dies In Bus Accident

LITTLE FALLS, N.Y. (UPI) — A Greyhound bus skidded in a heavy snowstorm on the State Thruway Monday and flipped on its side, killing a female passenger and injuring all others aboard, state police said. Troopers said there was about five inches of snow on the ground when the bus, travelling in the westbound lane, skidded onto the muddy median and rolled onto its side about seven miles east of this Mohawk Valley community.

The dead woman, who witnesses said was sitting directly behind the driver, was identified as Mrs. Helene Shaw, 74, of Newton, N.J. and Queens.

The driver, Pasquale Colucci, 47, of Yonkers, and 11 passengers were admitted to Little Falls Hospital in fair and serious condition, a hospital spokesman said. Three other passengers were treated and released.

No other vehicles were involved in the crash, troopers said. However, a tractor-trailer jackknifed in the eastbound lane, directly opposite the scene of the bus crash. The driver of the truck was not injured.

Park Free In Kingston

KINGSTON Mayor Francis R. Koenig announced that payment on all city parking meters would be suspended effective today through Tuesday, Dec. 24, as an "extra gift to all holiday shoppers."

Koenig cautioned that the lifting of restrictions on parking meters does not include an amnesty from other parking violations such as no parking in loading zones, parking on cross walks, alternate side parking and so forth.

Condition Improves

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI) — The condition of the only surviving Lange sextuplet improved slightly Monday, officials at Valley Medical Center reported.

Jolene Lang, who is nine days old and weighs just over two pounds, continued to have mild respiratory problems. She was the first of six premature babies born Dec. 8 to Mrs. Charlotte Lange, wife of an armored truck driver.

Your Astrograph

For Wednesday, Dec. 18, 1974

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your ideas carry a lot of weight with others. You're especially effective in committee work or speaking to a group. TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Take the lead in ventures or situations where you share an interest with another. Your leadership is now essential.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Balance will be restored to a relationship that has been a trifle unsteady. You'll see eye-to-eye where you previously disagreed.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Some information of a confidential nature will be passed on to you at work. You'll be able to use it profitably.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll be called upon to help another manage a situation a bit too much for him. With your help, it will be done successfully.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you put your mind to it, you can get a lot of work finished you've brushed aside. You'll be less energetic tomorrow.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Whatever you do and wherever you go today, you'll call favorable attention to yourself. Don't try to duck the spotlight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) When doing last-minute shopping for incidentals, take your checkbook. You may spot a big bargain for the home.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You think fast on your feet today. You'll be able to make advantageous moves while others still ponder the basic facts.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) This will be a good day for you materially. Conditions will be working behind the scenes for your betterment.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Should your paths cross unexpectedly, you will be treated with consideration today by persons of authority and influence.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Something of importance will be achieved today. It won't be brought off by you alone. Others will have a hand in it.

Dec. 18, 1974

Better keep your traveling bag handy this year. You're apt to be on the go quite often. Lots of short, pleasurable trips are in store for you.

You cover West's jack of diamonds with the queen. People have been known to lead away from kings; but this time East produces the king. If you are careless, you'll take your ace right away.

Later on you lose the club finesse; East puts his partner in with a diamond and West leads a spade. You think, but thought does you no good. East holds both the ace and queen and you wind up one in the soup.

Now look how pleasant life is if you do a little thinking at trick one. You note that the king of diamonds has shown up in the wrong hand. It is possible that the same wrong hand holds the ace-queen of spades and king of clubs.

Now you let East hold that first trick. He can do anything he wants at this point. The same goes for later on when he takes his king of clubs, but whatever he does he will be helpless to put West on lead. Now you will lose just one spade, not two.

Cookie Makers to Appliance Workers... the Layoffs Continue

Several thousand persons — from cracker and cookie makers to auto and appliance workers — were laid off Monday by companies confronted by lagging sales and growing inventories of unsold products.

The jobs of several thousand other workers were put in jeopardy by the energy shortage, and steel companies said they would have to idle workers because a strike by construction workers has kept many coal mines closed.

The Commerce Department said inventories rose 2.2 per cent in October while sales increased only 0.5 per cent, a sign companies are producing goods faster than consumers are buying them and of even more severe production cuts and layoffs.

In other economic developments, gold hit a two-week high on international bullion markets, closing in Zurich at $183.25 an ounce and in London at $183.

London bankers said reports oil-rich Arab states would seek to buy most or all of the 2 million ounces of gold the United States will auction off Jan. 6 was responsible for the rise in gold prices.

Elsewhere, the United States and France agreed on a common oil policy to counter oil producing nations, but a Saudi Arabian official said it was "unrealistic" to expect major reductions in oil prices.

In the United States, signs of a new energy crisis began to reappear. Consumers in three states were told that gas supplies would be restricted.

East Tennessee Natural Gas Co. cut natural gas deliveries 40 per cent to industrial customers in Tennessee and Virginia, and 6 distributors in the two states.

One major firm, Aluminum Company of America, said its gas supply would be slashed 50 per cent and would result in a "very heavy layoff" of 5,800 workers at three plants. The New Jersey Public Utilities Commission banned the sale of natural gas to new customers after March 1 to preserve dwindling fuel supplies. Other states have taken similar steps.

The auto and appliance industries, two of the hardest hit by the recession, announced poor sales, more production cutbacks and heavy layoffs.

American Motors will halt all car production for one week in January because of a 112-day backlog of unsold cars, idling 15,100 workers at plants in Kenosha and Milwaukee, Wis., and in Brampton, Ont.

The Association of Home Appliance Manufacturers said deliveries of all appliances, except freezers, dropped 28 per cent drop in November. Shipments of home freezers were up 40 per cent.

Tapen Corp. of Mansfield, Ohio, laid off 800 hourly and 225 blue collar workers because of a backlog of unsold ranges and other heavy appliances.

Stomberg-Carlson idled 2,500 workers for three weeks at four plants. SMC Corp. is suspending production at five ProctorSilex appliance plants for up to five weeks, idling 2,500.

Nabisco, Inc., will close its cracker and cookie bakeries four extra days during the Christmas holidays, affecting 9,000 workers in 11 cities.

Watergate Cross-Examination Jousting

WASHINGTON (UPI) — All day long they jostled: The bald, gravelly defendant, 25 years a practicing lawyer, former counsel of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, former assistant attorney general — and the calm, blonde prosecutor, six years out of law school.

It seemed as much a personal contest as a crucial cross-examination in the Watergate cover-up trial, now edging toward its completion.

The defendant, Robert C. Mardian, 51, said he was an impatient man, adding with rare laughter that his wife of 28 years was hearing him admit it for the first time. Often he protested at the way Assistant Watergate Prosecutor Jill Wine Volner, 31, framed her questions. Frequently he fired questions back at her.

"I'm not going to dignify that with an answer," Mardian said at one point during the morning. "If you want to make a speech, go right ahead, Mrs. Volner." He accused her of putting "zingers" in her questions and making speeches and trying to testify.

Once he apologized, but he kept up his vigorous replies and thrusts. Chief trial lawyer James F. Neal rose a couple of times to protest that Mardian was being "witness, judge and examiner." He asked Presiding Judge John J. Sirica to admonish Mardian to stop being "cute" and making remarks "gratuitously."

"If she would stop asking questions that indicate an answer that is inaccurate, I wouldn't have to do that," Mardian replied.

Sirica scolded both of them. "I've been very patient. I want you to answer these questions," the judge told Mardian. "What's going on here is too many arguments. I've had enough of that. I'm not just talking about you, but also about the prosecution. I've had enough of it and it's going to stop."

Sirica told Mrs. Volner to conclude her cross-examination by mid-morning today, Mardian's third day on the stand. Then Kenneth W. Parkinson, who like Mardian did Watergate legal work after the 1972 break-in, will begin his defense, the last of the trial.

'Explosive' Notes Could Rival Pentagon Papers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Government documents taken from the house of Daniel Ellsberg say the government tried to give a false impression of progress in Vietnam just before the deadly Tet offensive.

The 75 pounds of papers are in the hands of Rep. William Moorhead, D-Pa., who calls them "explosive" and says his House subcommittee on foreign operations and government information will hold hearings on them in Washington.

"I'm just glad they're going to be the subject of hearings in Congress," said Ellsberg, a former Defense Department employee who admitted releasing the Pentagon Papers on American involvement in Vietnam to newspapers.

Among the material, he said at his home in Mill Valley, Calif., were "cables similar in import to the Pentagon papers in that they showed a deliberate effort to manipulate public opinion to give a false impression of progress just prior to the Tet offensive in 1967."

Ellsberg said one of the officials involved "said of the cables that they not only should not have been classified at the time, but they should not have been written and making them secret was signing the death warrant of many thousands of Americans and Vietnamese."

These new documents were stolen about Oct. 1 from Ellsberg's Mill Valley home near San Francisco. Police investigating another Mill Valley burglary found the papers on Dec. 4.

U.S. Attorney James Browning tried to get the documents, adding if they were government property he did not plan to return them.

Ellsberg personally approached the committee, Moorhead said, expressing concern that the documents might never be made public. Moorhead said his subcommittee intends to review the material and release as much as possible.

The new papers contain material on the Cuban missile crisis of the early 1960s and a "well documented" draft of a book Ellsberg was writing.

Surrounded by four stacks of materials each more than a foot high, Moorhead said Ellsberg has confided the new documents may be "potentially as significant as some material contained in the original Pentagon Papers."

He described the papers as revealing "a situation where we remember the government telling us one thing and the documents say another."

Moorhead said he read one cable marked "secret" that dealt with the Vietnam War.

"If it is dated when I think it was dated, then it would be quite explosive," he said, adding that the cable appears to have been written during the Johnson administration.

Boston Committee Rejects Plan

BOSTON (UPI) — The Boston School Committee has refused, by a 3-2 vote, to approve a federally courtordered busing plan to integrate all 200 of the city's school by next September.

U.S. District Court Judge W. Arthur Garrity had ordered the plan presented to him by Monday. When the deadline was not met, he immediately summoned the five committee members to appear before him "in person" Wednesday to face possible contempt citations.

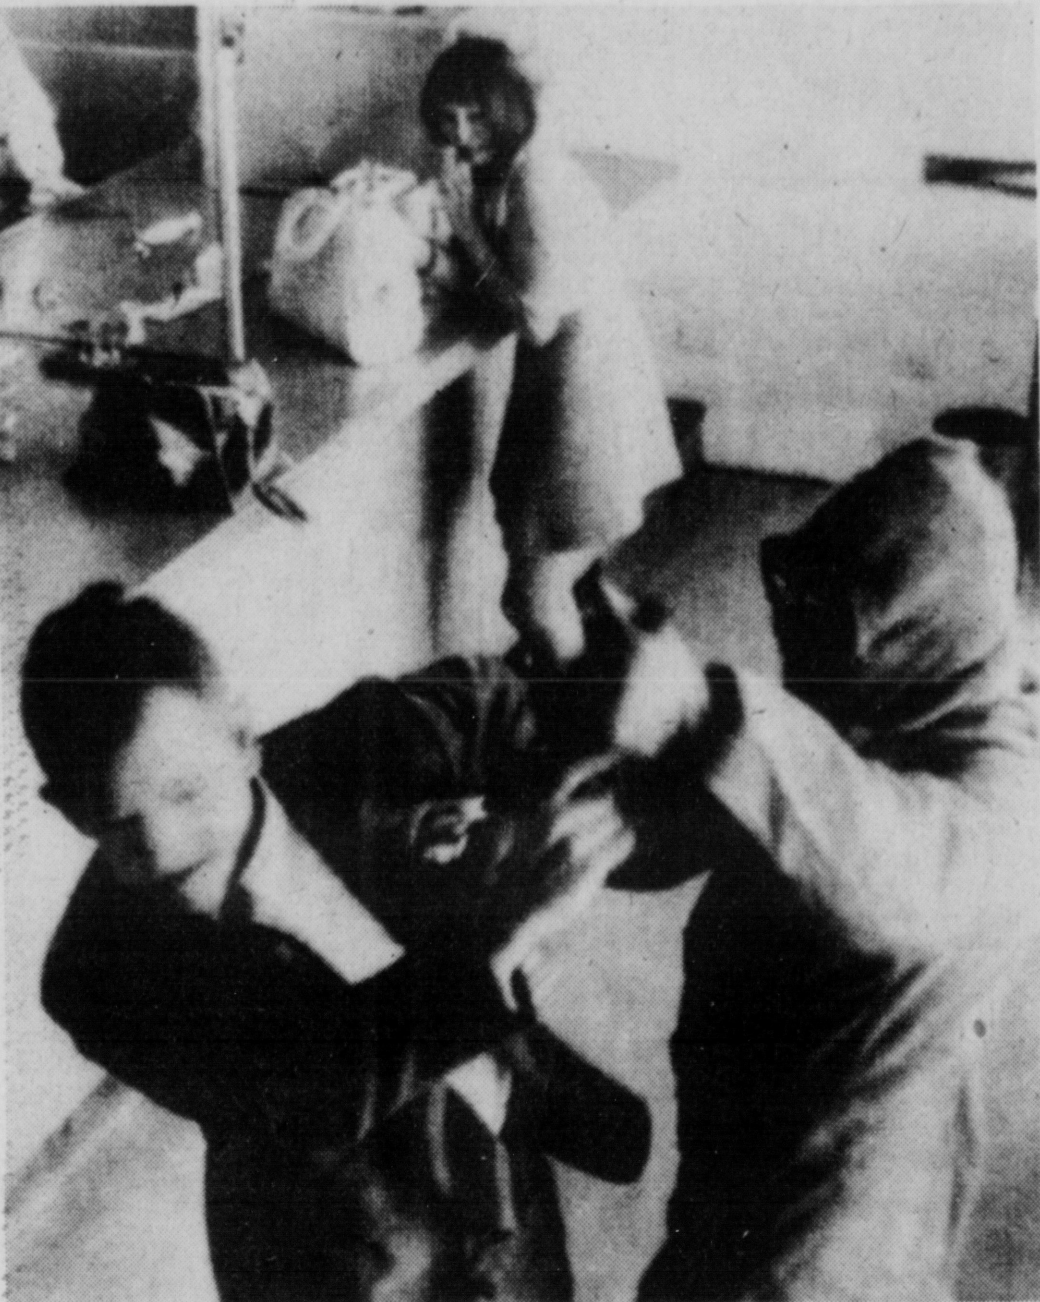

The defeated 300-page plan, drawn up by the city School Department, was later turned over to Garrity by the school attorney

David O. Mirick despite the committee's objections.

The "Phase Two" plan would involve the busing of 31,000 students for distances of up to seven miles when schools reopen next fall. Some 17,000 pupils are currently being bused to 80 schools under a temporary desegregation order handed down by Garrity last summer.

The current busing program has sparked repeated violence and mass demonstrations by both protesting and antibusing forces, and South Boston High School has been closed in the wake of a stabbing and protest last week.

Patty Hearst Shares in Estate

NEW YORK (UPI) — Patricia Hearst has been named to share in the estimated $2.5 million estate left by her grandmother.

The late Millicent V. Hearst, widow of newspaper magnate William Randolph Hearst Sr., died Dec. 5 in New York at the age of 88.

Her granddaughter, Patricia, was kidnapped from her Berkeley, Calif., apartment early this year by members of the Symbionese Liberation Army, who demanded that her family set up a program for feeding the poor.

After the SLA declared itself unsatisfied with the effort, Miss Hearst renounced her family and said she had joined the terrorist group.

She was later identified as one of several armed persons who held up a San Francisco bank.

Several members of the SLA were killed by Los Angeles police in a shootout a few weeks later. Miss Hearst and Bill and Emily Harris are being sought by the FBI as the last three members of the group.

In a front-page letter published Sunday in the San Francisco Examiner, Miss Hearst's mother pleaded with her to give herself up and come home for Christmas.

Miss Hearst's father, Randolph A. Hearst, is president and editor of the paper.

Mrs. Hearst also told her daughter that "you will be saddened to learn that your grandmother died Dec. 5 and Aunt Anita passed away Nov.

12. They were always inquiring about your work at the university."

"We never dared tell them what happened to you because the doctor was afraid that they were too old and feeble to stand the shock."

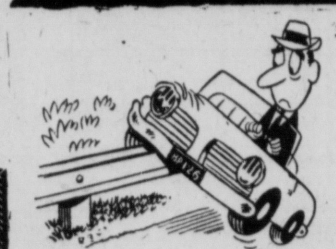

The heirs to Mrs. Hearst's estate were disclosed in Manhattan Surrogate's Court Monday when her will was filed for probate.
